COUNTY BOARD REFERS CARRILLO FEE CASE TO DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Intense Warfare Is Resumed On Manchurian Front

REPORT 500 ARE KILLED IN FIGHTING

Soviet Planes Aid Gunners And Field Guns Placed In Use By Both Sides

WEATHER IS COLD

Brigands Take Advantage Of Confusion and Looting of Towns Has Set In

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Heavy cannonading by Red army artillery was reported today from several points along the 1000 mile frontier where Soviet forces were said to have resumed their "offensive" against Chinese outposts.

Russian attacks, which took a reported toll of 500 casualties over the week-end, continued in full force, with both sides using field guns, machine guns and concentrated rifle fire. Soviet planes were used for reconnoitering.

Heaviest fighting was reported in the vicinity of Manchuli, Manchurian border town at the western terminus of the Chinese Eastern railway. At Pogranichnaya, on the eastern terminus, looting by brigands was reported following the Sunday bombing by Soviet airplanes.

Exact extent of the casualties in the Manchuli section was not revealed, but considerable damage was reported at the 86th waiting station of the railway near the western frontier. Heavy artillery fire was reported from nearby Mulline, with squadrons of Red scout planes hovering overhead.

A dispatch direct from Manchuli said the Russians were striking vigorously with both artillery and machine guns. The Chinese troops returned the fire and the loss of life was severe. Bitter cold added to hardships in the trenches.

Dispatches from Pogranichnaya, on the eastern frontier, said brigands were taking advantage of the confusion which followed the recent attacks and partial evacuation of parts of the city to start looting. Sixty Russian and Chinese citizens were said to have been wounded by the Sunday bombing.

SUSPECTS IN L. A. MURDER RELEASED

KINGMAN, Ariz., Sept. 10.—(UP)—Ned Miller and Frank Celinski, both of Detroit, held here as suspects in the murder of Frank A. Foster in Los Angeles, have been exonerated of that crime, the sheriff's office announced today.

The men were arrested at Dagget in a stolen automobile and were said to have been identified by Miss Beth Taylor, Hollywood secretary, who was with Foster when he was killed.

Hang 2 Men Each Year--Hoover Joke

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(UP)—President Hoover was talking with an old friend about some of the difficulties confronting the nation's chief executive, according to the latest story around Washington.

"There is one law I should like to see passed," Mr. Hoover is said to have remarked in humorous vein. "The president ought to be allowed to hang two men every year without giving any reason or explanation for the sentence."

"Would two be enough?" he was asked.

"Perhaps not," the president replied, "but I could get the word to 20 or 30 that they were being considered for the honor."

SENATE READY TO GIVE OUT TAX RETURNS

Decision Reached in Debate on Tariff Bill Before Upper House

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Income tax returns made during the last six years by business men and corporations interested in the tariff contest will be given out to any member of congress, the senate decided today, adopting an amplified version of the Simmons resolution.

The resolution called upon the senate finance committee to ascertain from the treasury department the gross sales of corporations, inventories, amount of merchandise bought for sale and salaries of employees. Before its adoption it was changed by amendment of Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, to include any taxpayer in business who might be considered by the finance committee to have an interest in rates of the pending tariff bill.

The vote was 51 to 27.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(UP)—The harassed Republican tariff leaders in the senate have decided to make the best of the bad situation into which they were thrown when the farm bloc

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT IN L. A. INCREASES

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Enrollment in Los Angeles elementary, junior and senior high schools and the junior college will be approximately 300,000, Superintendent Frank A. Bouelle of the Los Angeles city district announced as the fall term opened today.

The increase over last year's enrollment will be about four per cent, Bouelle said, stating that the 1775 students who have applied for admission to the new junior college were responsible for the increase.

Jury Expected To Take Action Today On Protection Ring

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Grand jury action was expected today on the sensational assertions of Harry McDonald, arrested as a bootlegger, that certain Los Angeles policemen were involved in a "pay-off" protection ring.

McDonald was called before the investigating body again and was told to continue his story of the alleged demands of the officers for protection money.

Twenty-five city policemen have been mentioned in the investigation which was started about 10 days ago when McDonald was arrested. Evidence to cause grand jury action against at least eight of the officers has been produced, it was said.

TEXTILE UNION ORGANIZERS THREATENED WITH LYNCHING

EFFICIENCY IN POLITICS PLAN OF NEW PILOT

Chairman Huston Declares That He Will Put Party On All Year Basis

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(UP)—The new Republican national chairman, Claudius H. Huston of Tennessee, is preparing to match the activity of the Democrats by placing the Republican national party organization on an all-around-the-year basis.

Huston has told his party colleagues the work of party organization is not a spasmodic affair but a year around task, and party headquarters here are to be reorganized on that basis.

It appears as if politics at last is yielding to the urge for efficiency for both national party organizations are being placed on a more business-like basis.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, has established his organization on a permanent basis by placing J. J. Shouse, executive chairman in charge of headquarters here with a large staff.

Huston's task, however, will be much different from that of Shouse. The Democrats are so badly divided internally that the question of candidates must be held far in the background while the wounds of 1928 are healed.

While some friends of Alfred E. Smith believe he is a possibility for the Democratic nomination next time, few Republican leaders expect it. They believe they will have to fight a man more acceptable to the south than Smith was and if so, Huston's job is likely to be more difficult than was that of

THREE MEN JAILED IN ASSERTED PLOT

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Leo Wheeler, 27, said to be a San Francisco bootlegger, today was held in jail here with two other men whose arrests he caused when he asserted a plot to murder Mrs. Pearl Sutcliffe, wealthy Los Angeles woman.

Wheeler, in a statement to police declared he had been given $500 by Walter J. Sutcliffe, hotel man and husband of the woman, to take Mrs. Sutcliffe, "for a ride."

At the suggestion of Wheeler, Patrick R. Mullen and Orville T. Forrest were arrested and charged with conspiracy to commit murder. The same charge later was lodged against Wheeler.

Denies Report That Adverse Weather Reports Given Out to Pilots

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 10.—(UP)—Flying at full speed the Transcontinental Air Transport trimotored passenger plane San Francisco rushed head-on into a mountain with such force that all occupants of the plane were killed before gasoline in the tanks exploded burning the ship and its contents, according to an official statement released by the general offices of T. A. T. here early today.

That is the official statement of the company following close examination of the wreckage by Paul Collins, general superintendent of T. A. T. who made the investigation afoot, and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, technical adviser, who surveyed the scene of the accident in a circling plane.

The T. A. T. statement follows: "Too many things are involved to give an irrefutable cause of the accident. From a survey of the facts obtainable it is our opinion that Pilot Stowe crashed into the ground at full speed and under full control. He may have been blinded momentarily by a severe storm."

"A dangerous storm area was not indicated by any of the weather reports and must have been very local in character. Just before taking off from Albuquerque, Pilot Stowe was handed a weather report showing visibility, temperature, cloud conditions, barometric pressure and ceiling and other important data. From 12 reporting stations in that area, three weather bureau stations and nine T. A. T. stations.

"At none of these places were hazardous flying conditions reported. On the same day our eastbound ship and aircraft of other companies flew the same route without encountering unusual conditions."

"Pilot Stowe did not take off in the face of poor flying conditions or against his better judgment, as no

SENATE NAVAL BODY VOTES TO PROBE SHEARER

Investigation to Be Made Of Activities of Shipbuilding Plants

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(UP)—The senate naval affairs committee voted today to investigate the activities of Wm. B. Shearer, big navy advocate at the Geneva preparatory disarmament conference in 1927 and his connection with American shipbuilding corporations.

Meantime, demands for a thorough investigation of alleged interference with naval arms reduction negotiations by paid propagandists were reiterated today by President Hoover.

"Disclosures of interference already are so obviously evident as to require these matters to be gone into to the very bottom," the president said at his press conference.

Chairman Hale and Senator Robinson, Dem., Ark., were appointed by the committee to confer with Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee today to draft a resolution to authorize the investigation. They expected to introduce the resolution later.

Meantime the White House gave out the first of the replies from shipbuilding concerns who were last week asked by President Hoover to explain their alleged connections with Shearer.

E. G. Vrace of the Bethlehem Steel corporation replied that his company, in connection with other concerns, employed Shearer as an observer but not as a propagandist at Geneva.

Graphic Story Of Kidnaping Given Public

North Carolina Anti Communist Mob Beats Man With Sticks, Whips

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 10.—(UP)—After a night of terror in which they were threatened with lynching and death, organizers of the National Textile Workers union and non-striking workers, slipped into Charlotte today and told a graphic story of their kidnaping by an anti-communist mob in Gastonia last night.

C. D. Saylor, one of the kidnaped organizers, said he recognized five members of the mob. He named persons prominent on the outside of the recent labor capital struggle in the local textile mills as his assailants.

Ben Wells, 27, an organizer, lay in a bed in a downtown hotel and exhibited his legs which were covered with cuts, bruises and welts from his hip down as he told his story. Despite the pain, he was cheerful and after relating how the mob had beaten him with sticks and whips said smiling: "It was a hell of a night."

Tired and haggard after walking eight miles from the scene where they were thrown from automobiles and where the mob attempted to force C. D. Saylor, 41, another organizer, and C. M. Leil, 52, a strike leader, to beat Wells, the trio told their story simply.

They described how the automobile loads of men shouted "lynch the red" and "kill them" as they whisked them from Gastonia into Charlotte. Pistols were poked in their ribs, they said.

The anti-communist demonstration started when it was reported that Amy Schechter and Vera Bush, two of the 16 defendants waiting retrial Sept. 30 on murder charges growing out of the fatal shooting of Police Chief Adolph in Gastonia during a riot at strikers headquarters there on June 7, were to address a strikers meeting.

WOMAN INJURED IN CRASH NEAR DEATH

LIVERMORE, Calif., Sept. 10.—(UP)—Little hope is held for the recovery of Mrs. George Schroter, of San Francisco, who is at a local hospital with critical injuries received in a highway accident yesterday in which her husband was killed.

The accident occurred when the machine in which the Schroters were riding, ran off the highway and overturned. William Lachas, their stepson, who was driving, received a fractured hand. Mrs. Saylor A. Ramwell, of Manteca, Schroter's daughter, was not hurt.

State Engineers May Inspect Large Burbank Reservoir

BURBANK, Calif., Sept. 10.—(UP)—Possibility that state and special consulting engineers would assist Burbank officials in investigating municipal reservoir No. Four, which developed four cracks Saturday, loomed today when a telegram received from Edward Hyatt, state engineer, asking if the reservoir came under the new state law governing water storage tanks.

The reservoir, with a capacity of 7,000,000 gallons of water, has been completely emptied in readiness for inspection and investigation by engineers.

Hyatt said in his wire that if the dam came under the supervision of the new law, to stop all work immediately until the state had taken over the inspection.

Seven Charges Made Against Chas. Carrillo

Here are the seven charges against Charles Carrillo, court interpreter of Orange county, contained on a formal complaint filed by the Register today with the board of supervisors:

1. That Mr. Charles Carrillo has sold his influence or alleged influence with peace officers and courts of this county;

2. That he has extorted money from defendants upon the promise that he would have cases against them dismissed;

3. That he has attempted to extort money from defendants who have been released from jail upon the statement that through his, Carrillo's influence, the release was obtained;

4. That he has demanded and received money for an instrument on the pretense that it would permit or aid an unqualified citizen of Mexico to enter the United States;

5. That he has threatened and used abusive language to defendants who declined his services as interpreter in court;

6. That he has used his influence as court interpreter to collect exorbitant fees from many illiterate Mexicans to aid them to obtain operator's licenses to drive automobiles;

7. That he has illegally extorted money on the pretense that he got permission for members of the family of a defendant in jail to visit him.

REGISTER OFFERS AID TO MEXICANS

The Santa Ana Register today stands ready to provide free interpretation service and instruction for Mexican people of Orange county in securing automobile drivers' licenses in case such free service cannot be provided by Orange county or by the state.

This offer to the Mexican people was made today before the board of supervisors by W. Maxwell Burke, representing the Register, after he had called attention to what his paper believes is a necessary service that should be rendered free.

Burke pointed out that Charles Carrillo, court interpreter of Orange county, probably is within his legal rights in charging a $2 fee for instruction and interpreting service. But he declared that he believed the Mexican people were entitled to this service free and that The Register is ready and willing to provide it.

Burke pointed out that if the service is provided by an official he believed that official should be employed strictly on a salary basis and should not be allowed to charge a fee.

WRITER ASKS FOR POLICE PROTECTION

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Fear that a man sent to prison may be seeking revenge caused Lorna Moon, author of a best selling novel, to appeal to police today for protection.

Miss Moon, confined to her bed, said that several attempts have been made to force an entrance to her home recently.

SEVEN CHARGES MADE

Formal Complaint Is Made By W. Maxwell Burke, Paper's Representative

ON BEHALF of the Mexican people of Orange county and in the interest of what it believes is fair play the Register today requested the activities of Charles Carrillo, court interpreter, in his relations with these people.

The Register urged that Carrillo be suspended from office during the investigation of hearing because of the fact that Mexicans throughout the county fear the supposed power of Carrillo and because they should not be subjected to possible intimidation during an investigation while Carrillo is in office.

Carrillo was not suspended. W. Maxwell Burke, representing the Register, filed with the board a formal complaint containing seven serious charges against Carrillo. The complaint was signed by J. Frank Burke, editor of the Register, and is supported by affidavits from Mexican people who have dealt with Carrillo.

The affidavits will be presented to the proper authorities if an investigation is launched and Carrillo is suspended. The Register does not wish to leave the signs of the affidavits open to the intimidation, which they fear, and further desire to make it possible for them to give their testimony, if it is requested, free from any outside influence.

The Register pointed out yesterday that one of Carrillo's own friends had publicly stated that Carrillo had done one of the acts which the Register now charges against him in the complaint. F. Valdez, 402 Lemon street, Orange, declared at a public meeting on Sunday that Carrillo had done him many favors.

BUS OFFICIAL HELD ON ASSAULT CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Carl H. Howe, 28, assistant superintendent of a Los Angeles bus line, was arrested last night on a charge of attempted criminal assault of Miss Caroline B. Kellogg, 44-year-old woman attorney.

According to Miss Kellogg's story to police, she was held prisoner 24 hours in Howe's home after a party attended by friends of both. She was terrified by advances made by Howe before she was able to escape, Miss Kellogg said.

Police records show that Howe served two prison sentences, one on a bad check charge and another for child stealing. Miss Kellogg was Howe's attorney both times and befriended him after his final release from prison last May, it was said.

Enrollment At County High Schools Shows Gain

REGISTRATION AT COLLEGE IN BIG INCREASE

Marked by increases in attendance registration of high school and junior college students was under way in Orange county today.

At Fullerton junior college, 450 students enrolled before noon and it was anticipated by Principal L. E. Plummer that the figure would pass the 500 mark late today. More than 600 pupils are expected within the next 10 days, he said.

On the opening day last year 300 pupils enrolled, Plummer said, in revealing the big increase in registration at the college.

At the Fullerton high school, 1000 pupils enrolled, as against 850 for the same day in 1928. It was believed that by the end of this week more than 1200 students would be enrolled.

Garden Grove high school teachers signed 240 pupils this morning. Last year on the opening day 210 pupils enrolled, Principal L. L. Dols said. The new science building of the Garden Grove high school will be ready for occupancy by October, it is believed.

The Brea-Olinda union high school has 30 more students today than it did on the opening day last year, Principal C. O. Harvey announced, 260 enrolling this morning. Harvey said that the registration is expected to pass the 275 mark this week.

Anaheim union high school enrolled 703 students this morning, as against 668 last year, Principal J. A. Claves revealed.

Bomb Dropped In Front Of U. S. Navy Tug

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 10. — (UP) — A bomb was dropped in front of the navy tugboat Luka as she passed under Manhattan bridge, shortly after 1 p. m.

Officials believe a crank dropped the bomb. No one on the tug was injured.

The Luka was 150 feet off shore as she started cruising under the bridge. Just as it slid under the bridge an object dropped in the water and there was a heavy explosion. Water was thrown over the craft's bow.

There were about 50 members of the crew aboard the Luka.

"Because of the scores of planes, military, commercial and private which aided T. A. T. in its search, it will be some time before the searching fleet can be disbanded and the T. A. T. fleet and personnel returned to their proper stations.

"The mechanics of T. A. T. from Columbus to Los Angeles, have been assembled at Winslow, were engaged day and night in the task of keeping the searching fleet in proper condition. Regular schedules over T. A. T. will be resumed as soon as equipment and personnel are properly ready.

"Officials of T. A. T. are appreciative of the splendid cooperation given by the army and navy planes, planes of other commercial companies and private owners.

"We deeply regret that air transport, which has made such rapid strides in the past few years, should be afflicted with its tragedy, just as are railroads, the seas, and the highways.

plan to spirit away the speakers.

The night of terror spread from Gastonia to Charlotte shortly before 11 p. m. when the mob was reported to have visited the home here of Tom Jimison, a defense attorney and ex-preacher, shouting: "Lynch him," "Lynch Jimison."

When it failed to locate Jimison the crowd stormed the offices of the international labor defense and visited a hotel in search of Hugh Oehler, organizer, who was beaten in South Gastonia Saturday night by a mob while enroute to a strikers meeting.

Oehler was eating in a restaurant nearby with Leon Josephson, another defense attorney. They escaped in an automobile.

Dr. John R. Neal, of Tennessee, defense attorney and former fender of John T. Scopes in the evolution trial sat in the lobby of a hotel with Jimison. Both were nervous.

Neal asked for police protection. Both men spent the remainder of the night in seclusion.

The uprising began in Gastonia nine hours after the dramatic trial of the 16 strikers had been brought to an abrupt end by the mental collapse of Juror Campbell. He was carried screaming and crying into a cell at police headquarters.

injected the Vare case into their tariff debate.

Instead of seeking to delay action on the resolution to oust Senator-elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, which would necessarily delay the tariff bill also, they have agreed to settle the issue at once. If Vare is denied his seat which seems inevitable, then Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania, a friend of Secretary of Treasury Mellon, is empowered to appoint a Republican to fill his place.

Working out this way, the situation might cause the Republicans to lose the Vare case, but they would gain a vote in the pending tariff fight, in which they need every vote they can get.

This method was accepted because it appeared to be the only way out of the tangle into which they found themselves when Senator Norris, the farm bloc Republican, unexpectedly introduced

JURY WILL GET MURDER CASE ON TOMORROW

Impassioned arguments were made today before the jurors trying the case of Abel Nava and Allen Slater on the charge of murder of Walter Roy Kirk by the attorneys representing the state and those conducting the defense of the two Long Beach youths.

The arguments were completed late this afternoon and the court recessed until tomorrow morning, when Judge Emerson J. Marks stated that he intended to give the case to the jurors for their decision as to the guilt or innocence of the youthful defendants, who calmly heard the pleas made today for the conviction.

Deputy District Attorney S. B. Kaufman opened the argument for the prosecution, when court convened today, with a resume of the testimony in the case, and emphasized the statements of the two defendants in his plea for a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. Kaufman opened his argument with the statement that usually in a case at law the object was to secure the return of something that had been taken, but that in a case of this nature the return of life could not be made.

He stressed as important the position of the cars, claiming that from the testimony of the witnesses it was shown that the car of the two defendants was clear off the highway and that it stopped after the Kirk car stopped and that they could have proceeded on down the road if they so had desired.

He vigorously attacked the theory advanced by the defense that Kirk had been struck by a passing car and asserted that all of the witnesses except Nava had said that Kirk was not struck by a car. The testimony of the two autopsy surgeons that there were two fractures of the same size, one on the back of the victim's head and the other on his forehead, he declared, showed that the injuries were not the result of being struck by an automobile.

Kaufman then produced the shoes Nava wore and presented them for the inspection of the jury, calling attention to the fact that there were blood stains on the right shoe and none on the left. Dramatically impersonating the person of the slain man as a witness at the trial, Kaufman asserted that he leveled the finger of accusation at Nava and asked why, if the two fatal fractures of the skull had not been caused by the shoe of Nava, they were of the same size and at two opposite points on the head; why, if he had been struck by a passing car, he did not wait for the driver of that car to come up to the scene and why he deserted the injured man.

C. Douglass Smith, representing Allen Slater, after a calm and deliberate statement to the jury that there had been no connection of his client shown in the alleged murder, and asking that he therefore be found not guilty and cleared of the stain of a charge of murder of a fellow man, which he felt was entirely unjustified, highly complimented the court and the representatives of the people for their conduct of the case.

After a short recess, Kenneth Burns, member of the staff of counsel for Nava, made his opening statement to the jury, emphasizing the theory of self defense in the striking of the blow that felled Kirk to the pavement, where, he asserted, Kirk was struck by a passing car.

yesterday a resolution of the highest privilege, proposing to deny Vare his seat because of his $800,000 primary campaign expenditures in 1928, which the resolution said constituted "fraud and corruption."

The farm bloc is against the tariff bill and against Vare and they have a working agreement with the Democrats which may constitute a majority of the senate on both issues. The Norris strategy made the Republicans face the alternative of delaying the tariff bill.

SCIOTS'LL SHOW YOU WHAT MAN WILL WEAR NEXT YEAR

Do men constitute the timid sex?

Are men of this section so enmeshed by the dictates and caprices of a relentless custom that they are willing to melt next summer in ill-fitting, heavy upholstered clothing simply because they are afraid of making a public show of themselves by adopting more sensible attire?

If so they had better plan to keep away from the Santa Ana Sciots meeting, Thursday, when Long Beach Sciots, accompanied by its chapters and "Flying Squadron," will visit Santa Ana to show 'em what they will wear in the parade that Long Beach will stage on Saturday afternoon, September 21, when that city will hold its First National Men's Dress Reform parade.

The celebration is being broadcast by every known means of publicity and to date officials of Long Beach state that more than 850 news items of the event have been published throughout the country, excluding wire services. Leading news reel companies of Los Angeles have signified an intent to be present in Long Beach to "shoot" the best solutions for men's wear in 1930.

The city of Long Beach invites any male of Santa Ana to be present, garbed as he deems proper for the occasion. Many cash prizes are offered, with a capital prize of $200. Many Sciots of Santa Ana are expected to be in the parade.

CARRILLO CASE PRESENTED TO COUNTY BOARD

which a lady was in jail for some reason," Valdez said. "I went to Carrillo to get her out of jail and he got her out immediately," Valdez asserted. It is on a case similar to this in many respects that the Register bases one of its charges against Carrillo.

After hearing the case outlined by Burke and after hearing the seven charges against Carrillo, the board referred the affair to District Attorney Z. B. West Jr. West was engaged at the time in a criminal trial and could not be informed of the fact that the matter had been referred to his office.

In presenting the matter to the board of supervisors Burke pointed out that he was not appearing in a spirit of criticism but simply to place before the board a matter regarding one of its employees which he believed merited investigation. The written statement made in the complaint said:

"It has come to our attention through various sources that many of our Mexican population are being exploited unduly by Mr. Charles Carrillo, who is official interpreter of the superior court of this county, and we make this formal complaint to your body upon good and sufficient evidence which we are ready at the proper time to produce."

Following the seven charges the complaint said: "That this formal complaint is made to your body as the employer of the said Charles Carrillo as official interpreter, so that for the good of the community and that justice may be done and not sold, we ask that appropriate action be taken by your board."

Presentation of the Carrillo matter to the board followed more than a week of investigation by The Register among Mexican people in Orange county. In that investigation The Register learned the facts and collected the affidavits on which the formal charges were based. The investigation was begun after petitions had been placed in circulation requesting a grand jury investigation of Carrillo's office as a result of his charging a $2 fee for assisting Mexican people in securing drivers' licenses. In following up this matter The Register soon heard stories confirming previous rumors that Carrillo had used his office as a means to extort money from Mexican people for services and pretended services which The Register at that time questioned his right to perform or to charge money for.

In interviewing a large number of Mexican people The Register found that many of them had stories to tell about Carrillo which they feared to make public because of their apprehension that Carrillo would make trouble for them if they did so. The affidavits which The Register secured were made voluntarily by the affiants and no pressure was exerted in any way to lead them to tell their stories under oath.

Some who were close to Coolidge believe he may seek to be a candidate again in 1932 but this view is not held by most leaders in the organization now. They see nothing on the horizon to prevent the renomination of the man who broke the south and carried 40 states.

The FOOD WASTED in many homes WOULD BUY THIS GENERAL ELECTRIC

That pint of milk which you wouldn't think of giving the children, the half-bottle of cream that's ever so faintly sour, the bowl of applesauce that doesn't smell quite sweet, the soup stock, the end of a leg of lamb... the countless left-overs that would make perfectly good dishes if you could only be sure they were safely fresh.

You can be sure. A General Electric Refrigerator will quietly and automatically maintain a temperature safely below 50 degrees. Left-overs will always be healthfully fresh... you'll have a generous supply of ice cubes whenever you want them... your current bills will be surprisingly low.

Keep track of the food you have to throw away for one week, multiply that figure by four... and then compare your result with the moderate monthly payment which will give you the perfect, health-guarding refrigeration which a General Electric assures. Remember that this is the only refrigerator which has an all-steel cabinet and an hermetically sealed mechanism. Come in today and get the whole story.

Every General Electric Refrigerator is Hermetically Sealed

This record stands alone
There are now more than 300,000 homes enjoying the convenience, economy and protection of General Electric Refrigerators—and not one owner has ever had to spend a single dollar for repairs or service.

We endorse the National Food Preservation Program. 50° is the safety point for perishable foods.

You will arrive at the same conclusion, if, every day, you have a vision for your problems and perplexities, if you choose, but in the end you will find that no one else offers a satisfactory answer to your yearnings.

Go to Him. Trust Him. Seek His consolation and strength. He will learn for yourself that His "grace is sufficient for you," and you will be able to go on.

RECKLESSNESS IS BLAMED FOR CRASH DEATH

The death of Salvador Regalado, 25, Santa Ana Mexican, who was killed Sunday night in an automobile accident on South Main street, when the car which he and several other Mexicans were pushing along the road was struck by a machine driven by Richard Pearce, 20, Santa Ana, could have been avoided.

That was the verdict of the coroner's jury after an inquest over the body in the Winbiger funeral home this morning. The death of Regalado was reported by the jury as accidental but the result of reckless driving on the part of Pearce.

No recommendation was made by the jury.

Inhabitants in Soviet Russia spent upward of $750,000 for spring liquors in 1928.

Theater Magnate's Wife Intoxicated, Witness Testifies

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Mrs. Lois Pantages, wife of Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, was intoxicated and extremely profane the day her automobile crashed into one driven by Juro Rokumoto. It was testified today at her murder trial arising from Rokumoto's death.

Harry J. Lederbrink said he remonstrated with Mrs. Pantages and offered her aid just a few minutes before the collision in which Rokumoto was injured fatally. Her only answer was profanity, he said.

According to Lederbrink, he first sighted Mrs. Pantages driving her car over a careening path through traffic on Beverly boulevard.

She obeyed a stop signal at the corner of Beverly and Western, he said, but her motor died and he got out of his own automobile to offer assistance when Mrs. Pantages made no effort to restart it, Lederbrink stated.

FARMER EQUIPS COW WITH PAIR OF HORSESHOES

PARIS, Ill., Sept. 10.—(UP)—Horsehoes, if you please, on a cow!

Such was the request of Ray Davison, Edgar county farmer, made to Allen Bell, village smithy here, recently.

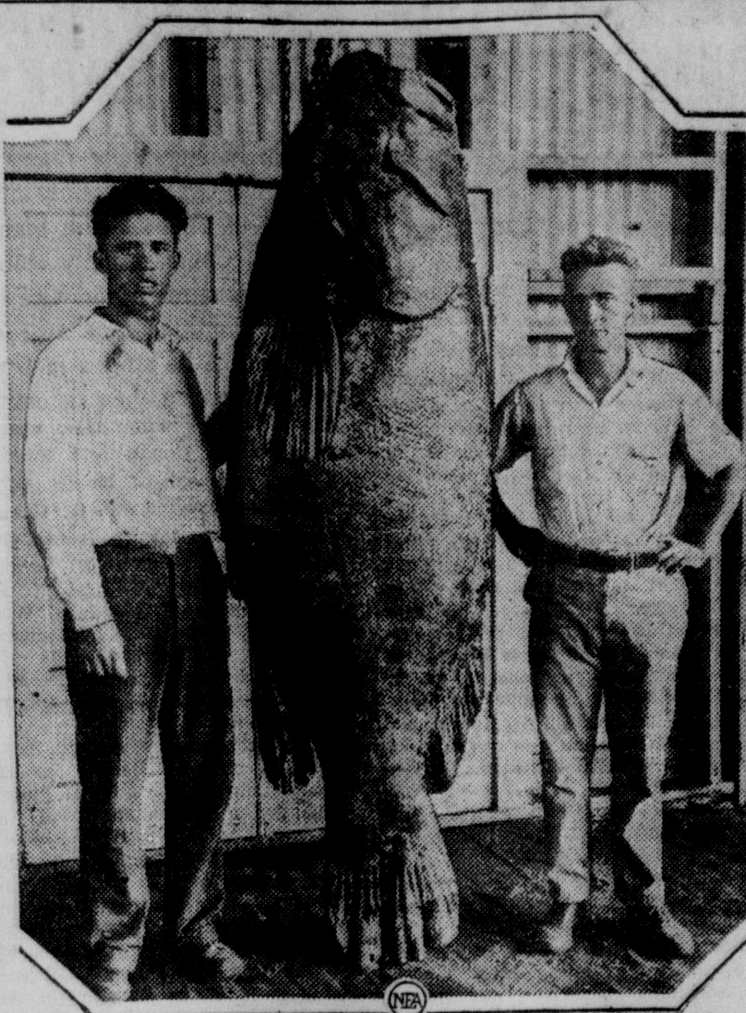

It all came about when bossy came in range of a moving machine employed by Davison to rid his fields of weeds. The blades of the machine severed the tendons in the hind legs of the cow, rendering them useless to the animal.

Dr. A. C. Tiffin, veterinary, was summoned. After viewing the injuries, he suggested bracing the ankle with shoes and upright steel straps. He figured that such a contraption would enable the tendon to grow together. The smithy was then consulted and stated that he could supply the shoes, which he pointed out of a pair of old mule shoes.

The shoes were nailed to the cow's hoofs, and Dr. Tiffin braced the ankles, binding them with rope so that the tendons went together again. The animal was then permitted to stand on her feet, which she did with apparently little effort. The severed tendons are knitting, according to Dr. Tiffin, who has been treating the animal.

SUCH MODERN HUSTLE!

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10.—We've heard a lot about automobiles replacing horses and bicycles, but sober Baltimore citizens who are used to seeing autos crash into each other every day were recently horrified to hear of four bicycle accidents in 24 hours. Slander Charged By Mike George In Slander Suit

Asking a total of $15,000 damages for slander, Mike George, who for the last four years has been engaged in the mercantile business in Placentia, filed suit today against Joe Simon.

The complaint recites that on Feb. 11, 1929, Simon, while in the city hall in Placentia, in the presence of Justice Tom Pickereil and other persons, stated "Mike George has a bad name and a bad reputation in Los Angeles and he is a dangerous man and was run out of Los Angeles because of his reputation." The complaint further states that this is untrue and that it has resulted in the loss of the confidence of the people with whom he does business and damages his good name, reputation and character.

George asks $5000 for losses that have resulted to his business from the falling off of sales and receipts and $10,000 general damages for the mental suffering and injury to the reputation, character and good name that has resulted. George is represented by Attorney Alfred J. Smallberg, of Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Dr. Frank P. Westlake will appear before Superior Judge Walton Wood today for sentence on his conviction for the "torso" murder of Mrs. Laura B. Sutton. It was expected that Dr. Westlake's attorney would ask a new trial. Dr. Westlake was convicted last Saturday by a jury which recommended life imprisonment.

Dr. Westlake was accused of murdering Mrs. Sutton to gain control of her estate. He was arrested after a torso and a skull had been found in the Los Angeles river and identification was established through dental work in the skull.

SHULER IN COURT ON LIBEL CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—(UP)—The Rev. R. P. Shuler, militant pastor, was scheduled to appear in municipal court today to plead to the charge that he criminally libeled George Cryer, former mayor of Los Angeles.

The count against the minister is based on an article which appeared in his monthly magazine and read in part: "Don't take bribes by the real estate route. If you don't know what I'm driving at—ask Mayor Cryer."

The Rev. Mr. Shuler recently successfully defended himself against criminal libel charges preferred by the Knights of Columbus.

He couldn't make friends until he found out why—"B.O."

GIRLS admired George—at a distance. But when he came close—they quickly lost all interest.

What was the matter? George couldn't guess. But luckily, someone put him wise—"B. O." Body Odor! Today, George is popular everywhere. Read his story below.

"I'm always pretty active, naturally perspire. In summer especially, what with heat and exercise, the sweat just drips off me.

"Yet I never dreamed I was guilty of 'B. O.' Thousands are fooled like this. I've learned, because we become insensitive to ever-present odors. But everyone perspires as much as a quart of odor-causing waste daily.

"Now, I play safe—and I'm strong for Lifebuoy. Man, there is nothing else can make me feel so clean. Its antiseptic lather purifies pores. No chance for 'B. O.'"

THIS HAS HAPPENED
HELEN PAGE feels unhappy when the girls at the boarding school tease her about giving up dancing and parties and being a simpleton just to please her roommate guardian, LEONARD BRENT, with whom they accuse her of being in love. And her roommate calls her a fool after they see him at the Ritz one day with another woman.

Realizing her school-girl infatuation for him, Brent exacts her promise to do anything he asks her to, and says he will tell her about her parentage after she graduates.

One day Brent spies a gold locket on a beggar who has fallen in an alley. He bends over to take the locket and hears mumbled words which cause him to try to save the old man. But he dies before Brent can verify any dates or facts except that his name is CHARLES OWENS NELLIN; that his wife is dead and that he has hidden his daughter from her wealthy grandfather, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM, of Yonkers.

Posing as a newspaper man searching for story material, Brent learns much about the history and habits of the eccentric old millionaire from the corner store gossip who tells him that the daughter had eloped with Nellin and the father had disinherited her. He had heard that the mother was dead but did not know where the child Evangeline was.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VIII
Brent regarded the lodging house proprietor with avid interest. "No?" he said, in response to the man's statement that Nellin or Owens, as he knew him, would not again frequent his sleeping place. "Has anything serious happened?" "Oh, not so very. The old fellow's better off. You'll find him down at the morgue."

Brent was not prepared for this and plainly showed his surprise in his expression, but he thought fast before speaking and his voice was level, almost cold when he said: "Well, no doubt he was not the man I'm looking for and, after all, it's not of any great importance. Just an old fellow I'm interested in. Sorry to have troubled you."

"No trouble at all," the other assured him. "So," Brent reflected on his way back to his hotel. "Nellin was using his middle name, Owens. Lucky break for me."

He did not feel that it was necessary to go to the morgue and have a look at Owens' body but on second thought he decided it was better to do so rather than leave the matter a stone unturned.

And when he had viewed the body and allayed all doubt that Owens was indeed Charles Nellin he felt in his mind, felt that his plans were strengthened by the permanent removal of Nellin. There was scarcely a chance, now, that Cunningham or his attorney, Greaves, would learn of Nellin's death.

There had been a few things more that he wanted to know about the Cunningham heiress and the musician. But he satisfied himself by refreshing his memory with the tale Nellin had told him the night before.

Out of the morgue, and breathing much easier, he put down a note or two of major interest and trusted the rest to memory. The age of the Nellin offspring fitted splendidly into his scheme. A year younger than Helen. No need to jot it down.

And fortunately, from all he could learn, Cunningham was not in possession of precise information concerning the birth of the child. A year's difference in the age that it would suit Brent's purpose to give the girl was not likely to be questioned. But whatever risk there was had to be taken. Helen's age could not be changed without arousing her suspicion or at least drawing forth questions from her.

Brent settled this point in his mind without hesitation and also decided to see Helen as soon as possible. It would be necessary now that his plans were changed, to start undoing the campaign he had been at pains to conduct in the past—his campaign to win Helen to unwavering allegiance to him and blind acceptance of his wishes.

He had been highly satisfied with it but he foresaw that it was going to be a bit difficult to make his past attitude fit the one he must assume for the present. But that, again, was a hazard that he must accept. No game worth playing was without risks and hazards, in Brent's opinion.

Helen, when he surprised her by coming unannounced, welcomed him with delight. His manner toward her was just a shade more familiar than before. But he said nothing to her, then, of the story he meant to tell her when she graduated.

As that event loomed nearer Helen grew radiant with expectancy and happiness. Brent had, gradually, dropped all aloofness in exchange for a manner that Helen believed promised the fulfillment of her dreams. She felt herself displacing all other interests in his life.

Together they would travel all over the world, and whether or not that glorious day ever dawned on which he would tell her, with new meaning, that he loved her, she could never be unhappy again.

She went through commencement in something of an emotional daze. And when at last she was seated beside Brent and on her way to New York, out of school, with a world of romance ahead of her, she felt unbidden tears stealing into her eyes. But they were tears of joy.

Brent sensed that she was struggling to suppress her emotion. He took the wheel firmly in his left hand and laid the other over hers where they rested on her smart cord bag.

"Happy?" he asked softly. "So happy I'm afraid," Helen answered.

"But my dear, if you only knew what your life really should be like I'm afraid you wouldn't be able to contain yourself. You have a right to a wonderful heritage, Helen."

Helen fixed her wide eyes upon him in silent interrogation. So much of her life had been filled with mystery and she had been so thoroughly drilled not to ask questions that she did not think to take advantage of the change in the man who had been responsible for her training, and voice her questions.

"But first," Brent went on, "before I tell you about that, I must explain to you, Helen, that I've been keeping something from you. Something about myself."

Helen caught her breath in sudden dismay. There was a solemn, heavy note in Brent's voice that frightened her.

"I've led you to believe that I needed you," he said, and then, as though he were compelled against his will to complete his confession, he hastened to add: "because I couldn't bear to think that you might grow away from me. I guess I wanted to be the only man in your life, Helen, and I thought I could do it by making your will subservient to mine."

Helen continued to stare at him, all but speechless. "But Leonard..." she began, and stopped. Brent had cut her off. Besides, she was at a loss for words.

"But I can't go on with that," Brent avowed. "In fact I haven't been thinking along those lines for some time. You've noticed a change in me, haven't you?"

Helen nodded. "A great change," she said softly.

"There are two reasons for it," Brent told her. "First, there is my promise to you to tell you about your mother and father when you graduated from school."

"Frankly, I was struggling eternally with the temptation not to tell you at all and to let you believe that I was the only person you had to turn to when you left school. But that is impossible now, even had I decided to deceive you." He paused, and managed to look forlorn and troubled.

"Leonard!" Helen cried. "There isn't anyone but you!" Brent shook his head. "That is not all my dear," he said dejectedly. "I haven't even such right as I had before to lie to you. You see, I've met with bad luck on the market."

Helen broke in with a cry of sympathy but Brent's confession flowed on. "Oh, I haven't lost everything," he exclaimed with a touch of weariness. "But I've not enough left to live as I had planned, traveling about with you, keeping up the farce of being your guardian, while all the time..."

His voice seemed to choke with the pignancy of his feeling. He slumped a little in his seat and resolutely set his face straight ahead.

Helen's heart ached with sympathy for him, but not so much that part of his confession caused to well forth from him.

He had never talked to her before like this, never intimated that he was desperately in love with her.

"I'm sorry," she said breathlessly, "for your sake, Leonard, but we don't have to go traveling to be happy."

She smiled at him wistfully, appealingly, but he did not turn to look at her.

"I could not possibly make up to you what you would lose if I kept you in ignorance of your birthright," he said sharply. "You may not be able to obtain it, and you may not wish to have it, but I'd never forgive myself if I deprived you of the opportunity to seek it."

"Leonard!" Helen protested. "you're talking in enigmas. Tell me what it means."

For a while Brent did not speak. Then he said very quietly: "Yes, I will."

REPUBLICANS EXCUSED FOR HIDING: THEY ALMOST HAD DEMOCRAT ON COMMITTEE

Confusion reigned today in the ranks of the Republican party of Santa Ana when news leaked out that the Republican central committee, seeking a "good and true" man to fill the shoes of G. K. "Scoop" Soovel, had just about decided on Jules Markel, Santa Ana contractor, member of the American Legion and all-around logical committeeman, only to learn, just before a meeting was called to appoint him, that he was a staunch Democrat and thereby unlikely to feel complimented by such an appointment.

At least four members of the Republican committee had decided on Markel, it was learned today from Stanley Goode, one of the committee members. Markel had not been approached regarding the appointment and he was to have been surprised—and what a surprise it would have been! Goode failed to say just how the committee happened to learn that Markel was a Democrat, but he did say that the information was received just in the nick of time.

Members of the Legion here could have settled the question quickly, had they known, for it was Markel, while commander of the S. A. post, who introduced his famous "chicken gumbo" at Legion dinners—and where else would chicken gumbo come from except New Orleans and the solid (?) south?

According to Goode, Markel had all the qualifications needed for a seat in the committee except that he was a Democrat.

Goode, like many other Republicans here, takes it for granted that all of Orange county is Republican, he said, thereby giving one reason for the near-error.

But this is not the first time that such a mistake has been made by a Republican central committee, according to T. E. Stephenson, postmaster and regular attendant at all political pow-wows.

It is remembered, he said, that the Tustin Republicans picked on Maurice Enderle, several years ago, as a candidate for a position on their committee. The public has forgotten that, but Enderle hasn't.

EDITOR REGISTER:

In reporting the proceedings of the meeting of the Water Conservation Committee of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, in the Register of the sixth inst., reference was made to a remark which I made concerning Mr. Bailey's attitude toward further investigation of the Prado Dam project.

The statement as printed, and separated from the text, is susceptible of being rather loosely interpreted, and as I feel that a scrupulous accuracy of statement should be adhered to, particularly in controversy and when referring to the words of another, I desire to make the statement in a way that cannot be misunderstood or garbled.

It is to the effect that Mr. Bailey told me, in discussing the situation after the election, that both he and the consultants would welcome a review of study of the flood control and water conservation question in Orange county by competent and unbiased engineers. He thought that such an investigation would bring substantially the same results as his own study.

I will appreciate it if you will make this public.

Very truly yours,

ROSS A. SHAFER.

The Cloven Hoof

A Man and the Two Worlds
That Dominated His Life

By... Fannie Hurst
Highest Paid Short Story Writer in the World

SOMETIMES neither the management nor a large part of the audiences which crowded the kind of variety theatres where this attraction appeared, knew what Cloven Hoof meant.

But seldom did they miss its connotation. Even to the ignorant and the unenlightened, the term "cloven hoof" suggested the pagan, the fantastic, the unrestrained, the naughty and forbidden.

The Cloven Hoof act did not disappoint.

It consisted of a series of "Solo Ballets" as the programmes put it, performed by none other than The Faun himself, a role that had for years been successfully impersonated on vaudeville small-time circuits by Renold Renolds.

THERE was a stage name for you. Renold Renolds. It intrigued the fancy. It made girls who had stood on their feet all day in shops and factories thrill with surmise.

Renold Renolds did not fail them. He was as straight and as fleet as a young god; or, indeed, as the naughty faun he portrayed. It might be said that his face was moulded in the form of a satyr's. Lean, pointed, with leaping arches to his brows, a dipping, full-lipped mouth, quick eyes and hair that grew naturally into forelock and sideburns. Even his fingers were full of quick, high movements, as if they were about to lift a pipe of Pan. Renolds was an old timer of success.

It was said that his performance had once included a stirring trapeze act that had yielded him over twice the salary he now enjoyed, but that his bride of two weeks had fallen off the bar and broken her back and that, since then, the Cloven Hoof act had consisted merely of the Solo Ballet.

Be that as it may, the performance still retained sufficient vigor and novelty to insure Renolds steady and long-term bookings.

HIS scene consisted of a grotto, moss grown, lichen grown, woody, tropical and full of strange under-and-overgrowths of fern, mosses, orchids and climbing plants. The effect of a waterfall was achieved by lighting. Birds of strange plumages sat in the trees, a red moon rose slowly out of a clump of jungle. Owls hooted. A nightingale fluted its half-finished notes. The beholder was transported from his consciousness of city streets, banging cars and day of toil-and-toil, into the curious, half-rank, half-fragrant mysteries of the jungle.

Renolds entered in a loin cloth of leopard skin, vine leaves in his hair, his strange pointed head thrown back and the pipes of Pan playing eerily along his lips.

He was god-like, all right. Tan were his limbs, lean and long, his torso full of flexuosities. His soft-soled sandals, made of finest kid, were fastened with thongs that wrapped around his legs and across the insteps and lent him silent-footed grace.

IT was said that Renolds's "fan letters" amounted to hundreds a week. At any rate, every month he sent a packet of them to the headquarters of his management in New York, as evidence of the continuing and hardy success of his act.

There were those who said the success of that act was not Renolds himself, but his animals. During all three of his Solo Ballets, there appeared upon the stage birds, dogs, cats, a small trained leopard, a pair of trained marmosets.

Two love-birds lit on the faun's shoulders and picked cherries from his lips. A tiny poodle dog ran into the scene on rear legs, carrying a doll-baby in his fragile forepaws. The tame leopard walked out of a moonlit clump of trees and permitted Renolds to turn double somersaults across his beautiful back. The marmosets staged a chase up and down the long, slim flanks of the solo dancer. Three pale gold angora cats played ring-around-a-rosy. A flaming macaw flew across the scene and alighted on the branch of a tree.

It was quite an act, ending with Renolds surrounded by his menagerie, birds along his arms, the leopard at his side, the dog standing on the back of one of the angoras, the marmosets chattering, the macaw waving its tri-colored, wide-spread wings and the lights causing the waterfall to leap glory.

This final tableau was posted in lithographs

There were those who said the success of that act was not Renolds himself, but his animals.

all over the lobby and along the bill-boards of the town.

It gave people pause. Especially the young girls whose feet could ache so at night liked to gather before the faunal figure in its jungle setting. Pagan beauty. Fleet, clean limbs before the wind. Release from pavement-bound fatigue. All these, and more, were ground into the colored lithographs.

Small wonder that the letters continued to stack up on the table in Renolds's dressing room. Girls flocked to his act. Women, especially the tired, earth-bound ones who stood on their feet behind counters all day, wondered about him.

There is an ecstatic sort of mystery about the man who can be wondered about. What was Renolds's life? Fantasy, indulged in by the meagre girls in their meagre rooms, ran wild.

Actually his life was this:

THERE was truth in the rumor that the two-weeks-old bride of Renolds had fallen from a flying trapeze. The short, blunt facts were that she had broken her back, cracked her skull and met with torturous internal injuries. She was a frail beauty of a girl who had danced before a row of footlights most of her life, and, with the sometimes astonishing endurance and vitality of the frail, had weathered the horribleness of the accident and had at least won her life. Precious little more than that. The back healed, but kept her flat on it. The skull healed, but the mind could bend and flicker like a lamp in a gale. Internal displacements sometimes tore at Emadie and made her frantic with pain.

And yet the mystery of it! The eternal mystery of the will to live! Both Renolds and Emadie fought for that life, clung to it, struggled to keep it going.

THERE is an old Hindoo saying that "No one but God and I knows what is in my heart." Well, no one but God and Renolds could quite have known the quality of love, endurance and forbearance that Renolds poured into those long years that were aftermath to the night his crushed and broken bride had lain writhing at his feet after the hurl from the trapeze.

Renolds gave himself to the remnant of this life that had been left to him with a zeal, with an intensity that were nothing short of fanatical, and with the sometime tendency of a mind that is tortured, to vent itself against the one most loved, Emadie literally pirated off the quality-of-mercy that was Renolds's. She was exacting, she was jealous, she was dictatorial and, in the frenzy of her pain, poor creature, was often abusive beyond the telling.

Even her doctors sometimes forgot forbearance, reminding her that there are limits even to the tyrannies of the afflicted. But not so, Renolds. It was as if he bared his neck, bowed his head and said: "Strike, strike, strike."

And strike Emadie did. For fifteen years Renolds had carted the poor little ruin that was his wife from town to town with him. He had invented beds, carrying chairs, spine-rest devices, mattresses especially designed for berths, cold-water bottles, hot-water bottles, travelling medicine kits, that might, if patented, have made him a rich man. Not a step had Renolds taken in all those years without the litter that bore his wife, at his heels.

It was a matter of transporting the frail body, establishing it in hotel quarters, assembling his menagerie, rushing off to the theatre and home again without even removing his make-up.

THE leisure of Renolds, if it might so be called, and about which the hundreds of wistful-eyed girls wondered, was spent ministering to the broken doll he called wife, and attending the needs of a menagerie that was rapidly growing old. For nine years there had not been a break in those animal ranks. The birds, marmosets, dogs, cats, had managed to survive intact. Some said it was the marvelous care that Renolds lavished on them. Some, the few who knew, said it was that same incredible quality of devotion that he lavished on Emadie, which had kept her alive.

Be that as it may, when the faun unthonged his sandals that were soft as panther-skin, ungirded his loins of the skin of a leopard, and hastened into civilian clothes, no matter what the town or what the season, his destination was the same.

Back to the hotel, into the room where lay the querulous invalid, suspicious of his slightest delay. Never a meal would Emadie eat without him there to feed her spoon by spoon. No one could touch her pillow, ease her position, massage her aching head, read her the daily newspapers, or minister to her capricious moods, but Renolds.

Her demands, her commands, were without limit. She loved him with a frenzy that made her insane where he was concerned. She tortured the thing she loved to limits that were incredible.

BETWEEN the demands of his menagerie and the demands of Emadie, Renolds's time was crammed to its limit. In a way his animals had come to depend upon him just as surely and just as exactly as Emadie. The French poodle would only eat from Renolds's hand. The macaw would let no hand but his place him on his perch at night. The marmosets pined and would not eat until Renolds personally administered to them. Countless times he had sat up the night through with one of the orange angora cats who was subject to asthmatic smothering spells.

If ever a man had two worlds entirely dependent upon him, that man was Renolds. The world of his wife, the world of his animals. He was their sustenance, their all. His time was theirs, his life devoted to their creature comforts, and to the exacting task of keeping the rough places of life out of their sight.

His nights and his days were full of them. Eau de cologne for Emadie. A toy to amuse her on the days when her back was particularly bad. Sugar for the poodle. A new asthma medicine for the cat. A bit of a sweet for the leopard. A tiny oil burner for the cage of the marmosets. A new device of an air-pillow for Emadie. Sweets. Sedatives. Service.

And every night, as he bounded on the stage into his jungle and the waterfall began to flow silver, and the shy, sweet sounds of the forest began to emerge, the rows of girls with the tired feet sat feasting their eyes and hearts on the beautiful pagan mysteries of the young god with the cloven hoof.

Late News From Orange County Communities

100 Hear Address By Educator From Mexico

SITUATION IS DESCRIBED FOR ROTARY GROUP

ANAHEIM, Sept. 10.—Nearly 100 members of the Anaheim Rotary club, wives of members and visiting Rotarians from other cities of the county were present at the regular meeting of the club at the Elks club yesterday noon, when Manuel Palavicini, educator and lawyer and former newspaperman of Mexico, was the speaker of the day.

Palavicini is making a tour of Southern California and will speak at a number of Rotary clubs. He is combining his tour with his honeymoon, having recently been married.

The speaker, who is an instructor in the University of Mexico, told of the problem that is Mexico in educating widely different classes of population to the high standards set throughout the civilized world.

Mexico has three classes of people, the speaker declared—whites, mestizos and Indians. The whites are Spaniards, Italians and Portuguese; Indians and a mixture of Indians and the other races. The latter class includes about 3,500,000 of the 16,000,000 population, he said.

Palavicini traced the history of the Aztecs. They came into Mexico from the Seven lakes, which it was thought, were the Great Lakes. The government and the privilege it extends to its citizens, each of whom enjoys equal rights, climatic and geographic conditions, were related by the educator.

S. C. Hartrant was the chairman of the day. The program was sponsored by the Rotary club of Pomona.

Seek Owner Of Big Bass Drum At H. B.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Sept. 10.—It will not be in order here any more to laugh at a woman who loses a pocketbook as big as a trunk. Some man lost a big bass drum at the beach. It is being held at the Chamber of Commerce office for a claimant. W. H. Gallienne, manager of the Huntington Beach Municipal band, says the story of the drum is an exaggeration. "No body could lose a bass drum," said the band manager. "The drummer merely left his drum at the beach band stand to be put in the Chamber of Commerce beach office by the caretaker until it could be sent for." But the drum reposes quiet and unheeded at the Chamber of Commerce office, where it was brought by some person who claimed to have found it on the beach.

FEELS TWENTY YEARS YOUNGER, DECLARES BUSH

"Although I'd heard a lot of praise for Sargon, I wasn't disappointed in the results I got, for five bottles built me up from 136 to 145½ pounds, nine and a half pounds gain in weight."

W. G. BUSH

"I was badly rundown and my food didn't seem to give me the proper nourishment. I couldn't sleep well and got up feeling tired and listless. The least exertion wore me out and it was all I could do to drag through the day."

"I feel twenty years younger since taking Sargon and I'm stronger and more active than I've been in many a day. My stomach is in fine shape and everything seems to agree with me. I sleep as sound as a child and get up full of life and energy. Sargon Soft Mass Pills are undoubtedly the finest laxative I've ever taken. There must be something unusual about a medicine that can do as much for a person as Sargon has for me."

The enthusiastic statement above was made by W. G. Bush, retired ranch owner living at 6801 Converse St., Los Angeles. Sargon may be obtained in Santa Ana at the Schramm-Johnson Drug Store—Adv.

With Korse turning in one of the best pitched games of the Santa Ana Twilight league season, the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company trounced the Auto Club of Orange County, 4 to 1, in the Bowl yesterday, this game opening the last week of the regularly scheduled season.

The telephone men got a couple of runs off Pitcher Everett Berry in the first frame. Tatum led off with a double and scored when Adams duplicated. Korse's single sent Adams home. Consecutive singles by Harless, J. Underwood and Braden and an error on Tatum gave the Pacifics two more in the fifth.

75 GROWERS OF COUNTY ATTEND WALNUT MEET

The walnut field day conference, held Saturday in Puente by Southern land walnut growers, was a great success, with over 500 persons from all over Southern California, including about 75 from Orange county, in attendance, according to Harold Wahlberg, county farm advisor, who returned from a conference in Berkeley to attend.

Following the morning session, at which the growers were addressed by W. H. Wright, deputy horticultural commissioner of Orange county, and W. T. Weber, sales manager of the California Walnut Growers' association, the growers made trips to three nearby ranches, where interesting demonstrations were conducted.

The theme of the day was the production of quality nuts. Wright in his address on the relation of aphid control to better quality production, presented charts giving the costs of spraying and showing the improved quality of the nuts resulting from the spraying operations.

Weber stated that crop estimates from all sections of the state indicated a crop of 37,000 tons for this year, which would be the next to highest record crop in the state. He pointed out that there had been such an increase in the production of budded walnuts that the differential between them and No. 1 seedlings will not be so great as heretofore. He emphasized the necessity of improving the quality of production so that the greatest returns could be realized to the grower. The opening price of the season will be fixed immediately after the return of Carlyle Thorpe, president of the state association, who at the present time is in the east making a survey of the market and who is expected home the last of the month, according to the association official. Changes in tariff schedule will not benefit the growers this year, Weber asserted, because they are not operative soon enough, but he averred that the records of the growers and the studies of the farm extension service had been instrumental in making possible the new tariff schedule and urged the growers to cooperate with the farm advisors in preparing these figures in the future.

Field studies were made in the S. E. Rysor grove, north of Santa Ana, before lunch, which was served in the West Covina Women's clubhouse, and in the W. S. Sawyer grove, near Puente, and the Dr. J. J. Biller grove, near Pomona, during the afternoon.

A change of orchard operations had resulted in material improvement at the Rysor place. At the Sawyer ranch, demonstrations were made of various types of harvesting machinery, among which was a Bishop walnut huller, made in Santa Ana. On the Biller ranch the growers were shown an experiment being financed by the joint fund of the counties, state and Walnut Growers' association for the eradication of the walnut husk fly, a pest that is a cousin of the fruit fly and that takes from 40 to 80 per cent of the crop in the Covina district, according to Wahlberg.

TREBLE CLEF CLUB RESUMES PRACTICE

Announcement was made this morning by D. C. Cianfoni, organizer of the Santa Ana Treble Clef club, women's choral ensemble, that members of the club would meet at 7 p. m. tonight, in the Community house of the First Christian church, Sixth and Broadway.

This will mark the opening rehearsal of the club's second year as one of Santa Ana's more important musical organizations and every member is urged to be present. Important business matters will be brought up for discussion, with applications for membership to be handed in and considered.

Applications for membership should be handed in at the meeting tomorrow night if they have not been handed already to Mrs. Fred Lazenby, club secretary, at 1004 Kilson drive.

It is planned to raise club membership from the personnel of 80 it has held during the last season to a full membership of 100 this year, selected from Santa Ana's best women's voices. All new prospective members interested in joining the club are urged to attend tomorrow night's meeting.

Santa Anans To Attend Meet Of Gas Association

Santa Ana will be well represented at the annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Gas association, which opened today in the Del Monte hotel, Del Monte. Included in the delegation from the Southern Counties Gas company are C. E. Rutledge, manager of the Orange county district, and Sidney Allender, of Rutledge's sales staff. Allender has the distinction of leading the company's entire sales force in a campaign for the sale of natural gas water heaters. In this contest he competed with crack salesmen in Santa Monica, Santa Barbara, Monrovia, Pomona, Whittier, Ventura, San Pedro and elsewhere in the company's territory, but the prize—attendance at the convention—was won by Allender by a wide margin.

OSTEOPATHS PLAN HEALTH CAMPAIGN

Dr. H. J. Howard conferred today with officials of the Orange County Osteopathic society and the representative of the California Osteopathic association, C. L. Villm, of Los Angeles, on the statewide plans now being made for public health and hygiene work.

The California Osteopathic association, of which the Orange County Osteopathic society is one of the 12 district organizations in California, is establishing several new departments, according to Villm. Child welfare work, under the guidance of Dr. James M. Watson, a nationally known children's physician, is a feature of the plan, with the co-operation of local physicians.

Extension work from the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons of Los Angeles will be maintained with faculty members of that institution heading various parts of the campaign throughout the state. Dr. Howard will foster the local work in Santa Ana.

JAIL SANTA ANAN ON CHECK CHARGE

Charged with issuing a fictitious check, D. W. Olsen, 22, of 926 West Chestnut street, was arrested at 8 o'clock Saturday night by Officer C. W. Wolford and is being held in the county jail.

Olsen is said to have cashed a check in a service station here several nights ago. At the time, the service station proprietor took the number of his car, which later he turned over to police. It was through the car number that the arrest was made.

Officers are investigating a report that Olsen is wanted in connection with the passing of a "no fund" check in Garden Grove several days ago, it was reported.

Emmette Osbourne Wins First Prize In Movie Contest

'VARSITY' NAME OF STORY GIVEN PICTURE HONOR

Emmette Osbourne, 2022 South Birch street, Santa Ana, today was selected by movie club officials as the winner of the $15 cash prize offered for the most suitable story for the club's second motion picture effort. Osbourne's manuscript, titled "Varsity," was chosen over the other entries for originality in plot and its adaptability for the Santa Ana group.

"Misjudged" by F. L. Carrier, 901 South Birch street, Santa Ana, was judged second best and "Dark Horses," an entry by Eleanor Crill, of Anaheim, placed third. Carrier will receive a $5 fountain pen, donated by the Santa Ana Book store and Miss Crill will be presented with a Brownie camera for her efforts.

Honorable mention was awarded to Betty O'Neil, of Costa Mesa, for her story, "Disgraced," and to Raymond Forrest, of Santa Ana, for his "Saints." "For Our School," by Mrs. Robert Emmerson, 1946 West Pine street, Santa Ana, also received honorable mention.

"Varsity," the winning story, aside from having the most original plot, will make an ideal vehicle for the talents of the Santa Ana players. The story contains an element of mystery and is a rollicking comedy-drama of modern college life. The characters are prominent types of modern youth and arrangements already are being made to have the finest of all-high school cast ever assembled for the various roles.

Second and third prize winners may claim their awards by calling at The Register office this week. The first prize will be awarded personally by club officials who will confer with the author in regard to the story.

The scenario is expected to be in readiness for filming on or before September 30 and the film will be completed in December for showing here, it was announced today.

Club members today expressed satisfaction over the response in the contest and for the co-operation extended by merchants and The Register, which sponsored the contest. According to Clyde Gilbert, advisor for the high school group, the majority of the stories were unsuitable for motion picture use because of lack of physical action.

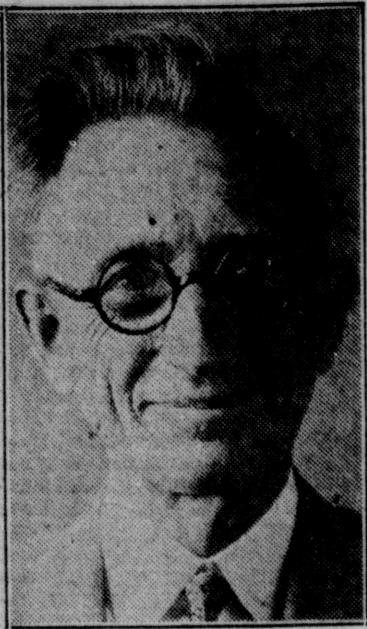

"Several entries, which made interesting reading, when analyzed, proved to have no film material," he declared. "As we expected, the shorter entries proved the most acceptable. Several stories run over the required length."

SCOUT EXECUTIVES AT BEACH MEETING

George G. Walker, Boy Scout executive, and Henry Unmack, field executive, of the Orange county council of Boy Scouts, are attending the biennial conference of the twelfth region, which embraces the states of California, RETURNED TO S. A.

The Rev. R. W. Harlow, pastor of the First United Brethren church in Santa Ana, who has been returned to the church here for the ensuing year. He has served here two years.

REV. HARLOW RETURNED TO S. A. PASTORATE

The Rev. R. W. Harlow, pastor of the First United Brethren church, of Santa Ana, was reappointed to his pastorate here for the ensuing year at the sixtieth annual California conference of the denomination, which closed Sunday in Los Angeles.

Members of the Santa Ana congregation are pleased that the minister, who has served here for the last two years, is to return. The work of the church has progressed remarkably under the direction of the Rev. Mr. Harlow. His vital interest in co-operative church and civic life has won for him the reputation of public spirited efficiency. It has been noted that the weekly sermons and activities in the United Brethren church are filled with human interest. The minister came to Santa Ana from the Kerman church, in Fresno.

Two sermons by Bishop I. D. Warner, newly elected to the district, closed the state conference Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. Harlow revealed that the Rev. T. W. Ringland had been re-elected conference superintendent for the fourth year.

Arizona, Utah and Nevada, in session in Long Beach this week. While the sessions are primarily for paid Scout executives, council members are privileged to sit in at the sessions, which began today and will continue until Saturday, and several Orange county men, members of the council, are expected to attend some of the conferences.

There will be dinner meetings tomorrow and Thursday nights. New and used bicycles. Fix It Shop, 105 E. Third St.—Adv.

'UNDISCOVERED' LAND NEAR S. A. IS DESCRIBED

All of California hasn't been discovered yet, according to L. J. Garnsey, of De Luz, who claims there are 800 square miles populated by less than 200 persons between Oceanside and San Juan Capistrano.

Garnsey, son of pioneer parents, pleads for a co-operative spirit for all cities in the Southland and loyally would introduce to civic-minded folk the fact that so much territory is being wasted, is lying dormant, simply because "nobody knows about it, or about its worth."

"Ours is a fine, a priceless heritage," he declared. "Our self-sacrificing pioneer fathers, who came here in '50 and '51, were unselfish in their labor and all worked to make the most of what they thought they had. Why, even my mother said once, 'Some day we may find something that we can sell for a profit.' Now, when there is land, fed by five streams, why do we let it lie unused?"

Beautiful Country With the enterprise and rugged strength of his pioneer fathers, Garnsey argues for this "undiscovered" section of the country. He tells of its beauty and possibilities of production. The thousands of live oak trees mentioned add to the interest of his remarks.

"Orange and Riverside counties will spend an estimated sum of $26,000," Garnsey asserted, "to get a road completed through to Elsinore, while San Diego county spends approximately $25,000 to keep a road closed through Maricopa to Oceanside and through De Luz."

"When my parents came here there was no timber, no irrigation, no harbor, no mines. They were 300 miles from a market. That was right here in Orange county territory. Now it seems the same conditions exist down where I come from. My parents and others like them used their heads and made something of this land, contributed to the wealth of this section. Why cannot folk today look ahead, or at least around them?"

"Five streams, Santa Margarita, San Luis Rey, Los Flores, San Mateo and San Onofre, feed that land. Now the state highway commission is putting a $420,000 bridge in at Oceanside. It wouldn't do that if there wasn't water under it, would it? And the Santa Fe spent about $25,000 on a bridge down there. That land has water. It ought to be used. There's enough already in the ocean."

Sees Great Trade Center Garnsey claims the biggest influence on the growth of Southern California in the future will be to keep down race prejudice "because the Pacific will be the trade center and foreigners will trade in places that treat them with favor."

The uncle of this enthusiastic pioneer was the first man to bring 900 head of milk cows here and his father established the first cheese factory in the far west. In '58 his mother started to can fruit, fully 15 years before fruit jars were invented. She used pickle bottles and sealed them with beeswax.

Garnsey recalls when Balboa might have been purchased for about $250 and its been, in his opinion, the co-operative movement that began 50 years ago that has developed this region.

Mrs. C. E. Grouard, Mrs. I. Mencham, Mrs. Nellie Young, of Santa Ana, and Mrs. Margaret Downs, of Los Angeles, are sisters of Mr. Garnsey. Garnsey is a cousin of Horace Fine, of this city.

OFFICER IS VICTOR IN 100-YARD DASH

A 100-yard dash came to an abrupt halt in a blind alley in the rear of the Spurgeon theater yesterday afternoon, when Assistant Chief of Police Sid Smithwick captured a man giving his name as A. P. Lewis, 45.

Lewis is being held in the county jail for investigation while police officers endeavor to learn if he "floated" more than two asserted fictitious checks in Santa Ana yesterday.

Police were called to the store of Sam Hurwitz, on East Fourth street, when the man appeared there. Smithwick answered the call and arrived in time to see his quarry dash away. Then the race started.

RECORD COSTS PILOT'S DEATH

This shows the fatal ending of the record-making solo endurance flight over the Cleveland airport by Pilot Thomas G. (Jack) Reid of Downey, Calif. Although he set a new record of 37 hours 56 minutes and 38 seconds, it cost Reid his life when his Emaco plane crashed apparently heading during the night into a tree a few miles from the lighted airport. Note how the plane piled up in a junk heap around the base of the tree. The constant drone of the motor is believed to have caused Reid, shown in the inset, to have fallen asleep and this caused the accident.

An ensemble trio, conducted by the chairman, who is an accomplished pianist, will open the program and Miss Marion Men, talented young violinist, will offer several solo selections. William Fox, well known student 'cellist, and Lucille Harrell Bond, concert singer, also will appear on the program.

Master Bernard Fields, 11-year-old pianist, will play several numbers, while his father, Isador Fields, tenor, will sing.

Sharp, 620 Riverside street, was slightly injured at 5 p. m. yesterday, when the automobile, in which she was riding with her mother, collided with a machine driven by Jose Fryo, 7141-2 East Walnut street, at the intersection of Second and Olive streets, according to a police report.

THIS IS NO JOKE

ABERDEEN, Sept. 10.—No longer will the Scotch bear the brunt of "tight" jokes. Lord Provost Lewis' recent accomplishment will to some extent allay all such stories. In two years he has collected from citizens more than $2,000,000 to build a new infirmary. One woman had to be dissuaded from drawing out her life savings of $250 to give to the cause.

Another Letter to the Sick

In our other letter we gave a simple explanation of Colon Flushing and Intestinal Hygiene, and this time THE MOST SUCCESSFUL PROCEDURE.

Before any treatments are given an X-RAY picture of the Stomach and Intestines should be made. This should show any and all distortions, both in size and position, as well as ULCERS AND CANCERS.

ULCERS AND CANCERS

Our X-RAY pictures show that about 2% of our cases have cancers and about 20% have ulcers. With this knowledge the patient can be safely guided in both foods and treatments. Our experience is that ULCERS are easily handled and respond nicely when INDIGESTION AND CONSTIPATION IS CORRECTED.

SINE WAVE TREATMENT

When the X-RAY shows a prolapsed condition of the Stomach or Colon the Sine Wave Treatment is indicated and should not be neglected.

LIVER AND GALL DUCT

When the gall bladder needs to be drained it should be "milked" into the intestines, if at all possible, as this gives the intestines the benefit of the bile function. Our work here at THE C. & R. HEALTH INSTITUTE is to free the blood stream from all Intestinal Poisons by cleansing the Intestines with non-medicated water, to correct the diet, the digestion, the liver action and CONSTIPATION. WHEN THIS HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED, 99% OF ALL OTHER AILMENTS DISAPPEAR.

New "Federation News" Is Noteworthy for Cover Design

The first copy of the new California Federation News, the official organ of the California Federated Women's Clubs, is off the press and is noteworthy for its new cover designed by Letta Horlock, a Los Angeles artist. It symbolizes club women and their work according to Miss Horlock in the use of the blue, yellow and white color scheme; yellow expressing life and light bringing inspiration and energy and white expressing purity. The colors are used in a vertical and horizontal design typifying strength and uprightness and rest and continuity.

The magazine features articles by Alice Ames Winter, Mrs. W. W. Slayden, state chairmen and the junior past district presidents. An inspirational message by Mrs. W. W. Slayden, state president, quotes from newspaper articles written at the time of the inauguration of the first serial newspaper route in history which lies between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Referring to this "Link of Unity," Mrs. Slayden says, "California, gloriously beautiful, colored and shaded by the brush of God, kind hearts beat throughout your length. Coming as I do from the south, I want you southern women to know that I love every part of California and the people living there. My earnest prayer is that we may be a united California now and forever."

Social Afternoon Is Planned By Ebbl For Monday

Intending indeed are the plans outlined by Ebbl's president, Mrs. Robert G. Tuthill, and her executive board members, for the society's first distinctly social gathering, to be held in the clubhouse Monday afternoon, September 16.

Details of the party were disclosed yesterday afternoon at the first autumn meeting of the society, when the members were urged to attend and share the varied features. Bridge of course will be given prominent place on the amusement program, and those who wish tables or places reserved, may telephone Mrs. A. G. Flagg at 1703 or Miss Norma Wingood at 1.

For members to whom card playing offers no particular charm, ample entertainment will be found in the lounge where Mrs. Emory D. White and Mrs. W. H. DeWolfe will present a group of artists of known ability. At the close of program and card session, all the guests will meet around the tea tables where Mrs. W. D. Baker, Mrs. Harry Spencer, Mrs. W. I. Ferry and Mrs. Tuthill will superintend the serving of light refreshments.

Decorative effects will be planned by Mrs. Paul Bailey and Mrs. E. T. McFadden.

Other board members who are working for the successful carrying out of these hospitable plans, include Miss Louise Tubbs, Mrs. L. A. Chenoweth, Mrs. J. Edmund Snow, Mrs. W. H. Haddon and Mrs. Charles Carothers.

Balboa Folk Are Home From Eastern Tour

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Crozier, 311 Island avenue, Balboa Beach, and their daughters, the Misses Mildred and Florence Crozier, have returned from a most enjoyable nine weeks' automobile tour our eastern states, and were accompanied on their homeward journey by Mrs. P. G. Carran of Cleveley, O., the former home of the Croziers.

Mrs. Carran will spend only a few more days in the Southland before departing for Ohio, but in her short stay here, her hosts have arranged that she see as much of Southern California as possible, and many have been the pleasant automobile trips to nearby beauty spots.

While in the east the Californians motored through the New England states, visiting popular mountain and lake resorts of New York, including Lake Placid and Saranac, and in the Great Lakes country spent some time among the Thousand Islands. The Crozier home in the beach city, is noted for the charm and beauty of its family heirloom furniture, and while in the east, Mrs. Crozier selected a number of rare old pieces to augment her family possessions.

District Meeting of Women's Clubs Planned

Several Santa Ana women are planning to attend the meeting of the Southern district federation of Women's clubs Friday which is to be held in the school auditorium at Laguna Beach, starting at 10:30 a. m.

New Members Initiated Into Santa Ana Chapter

Santa Ana Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, met last evening at the Masonic temple when Goldie Dennitt, Harvey Dennitt, Lea Steadman, Elsie Page and Miss Elizabeth Roehm were initiated.

Elton Roehm, past patron, and Mrs. W. R. Sylvester, past matron, were invited to assist in the initiatory ceremony by the patron and matron, Mrs. Mrs. Walter Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stocks, members of the Welcome chapter at Shasta, were visitors at the affair last night.

Plans for the future included two social affairs, one to honor Mr. and Mrs. Wright, will be staged at the temple on the night of September 23; and one, a dinner and reception to new members, will be held on the night of October 28. It was also learned that the matron and associate matron will attend the Grand Chapter, which is to convene in October.

The last committee consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Folger, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Roberts, Maude Swardout, Emma Chandler, Mabel Barge, Pearl Lyman and Mrs. Elita Neuswanger.

One particularly interesting feature of the evening was a talk given by J. G. Carter, representative of directors in the temple building association. He described the part that Santa Ana chapter is to play in the building plans and was enthusiastically received.

Celebrated Musicians Give First Ebbl Program

With spirits lifted truly "On Wings of Song," Ebbl members were today anticipating one of the most interesting years in their club history, following yesterday's auspicious opening under the presidency of one of the city's most gracious and charming women, Mrs. Robert G. Tuthill, and the thoroughly delightful opening program planned by the committee, Mrs. Lloyd A. Chenoweth, Mrs. Clarence A. Gustlin, and Mrs. Loyal K. King, and presented by the famed Philharmonic Trio of Los Angeles.

In the formal club opening, Mrs. Tuthill, with her recording and corresponding secretaries, Mrs. J. Edmund Snow and Miss Norma Wingood, outlined the new plan of the organization to make "Every Monday for Ebbl," and gave a brief glimpse of the pleasures in store for the members at the weekly program. The new leader presided with the poise and dignity which are her attributes, and made a striking appearance in a softly draped gown of black satin crepe with close-fitting little black hat relieved with a rhinestone buckle.

Lovely Program

Her announcements were followed by the musical program in which three of the Southland's most finished artists participated, Sol Cohen, violin; Earl Bright, cello, and Alfred Kastner, harp. Each member of this group is a member of and soloist with the Philharmonic orchestra of Los Angeles, and each has been heard innumerable times in this city, not only in orchestra appearances, but as the trio which takes its name from the parent organization. Every appearance has been marked by the same process which was achieved yesterday, and there was not an Ebbl member present but who echoed the wish of the president, that the artists might return at an early date for another such memorable concert.

For their opening number, the members appeared in ensemble, choosing the Reverie and Improviso from a Tedeschi Suite, played with that rare feeling and skill possible only to artists of their caliber. Alfred Kastner's harp rendering of an Impromptu by Piere, was perfection itself, and his mastery of his beautifully toned instrument was evidenced in the depth of feeling and musicianship displayed. He explained that Piere, a follower of Saint Saens in composing for the harp, had written several beautiful compositions, including a concerto with the harp as the central figure.

Talented Harpist
It is doubtful if California boasts another artist of such pronounced talent and perfection of technique as Alfred Kastner, and his solo work of yesterday was easily the outstanding feature of the program, leaving his audience almost breathless at the sensitiveness and ripened imagination displayed.

Popper's "Hungarian Rhapsody" was chosen by Earl Bright as his cello solo, with Raymond McFeeters at the piano. This was played with color and expressive nuance, and was thrown into dramatic contrast by a second number, a Ravel composition.

That same dramatic contrast was shown in the next group of ensemble numbers, in which the three musicians expressed a single soul in each of the three numbers. "The Larme" by Moussorgsky had a plaintive melancholy that was arresting, especially as preceding the solemn phrasing of "To San Francisco Mission" from a suite by Lily Strickland, and the quaintly staccato of "March of the Tin Soldiers" by Piere.

Sentiment dictated the selections offered by Sol Cohen in his violin solo group, for they were his own compositions, first played publicly several years ago when the State Music Teachers' association held its annual convention in this city. "Had Santa Ana not liked them at that time, I should have lacked courage to go on composing," he explained. The selections were "Mirage," a mystic, poetic thing, instinct with a feeling for the shadowy desert spaces; "Hobgoblin," which might best be described in the composer's own words, "A picture of an elf, scampering about the forest at midnight. He is captured, and weeps bitterly. When he finally escapes, I think you will hear him pattering away in the distance." A vivaciously brilliant Concert Waltz completed the group, but Mr. Cohen returned to play an original "Serenade," a delicately lovely vignette.

The closing group by the Trio began with Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song," interpreted as only artists could; "Hermit Thrush" by Cohen, charmingly melodious, and "Bolero," by Abros, approached with spirit and fire. Remaining in their seats, the women of the club accorded the three artists that unstinted praise which was their due, and were rewarded by a final number, Schumann's "Moment Musical" delicately exquisite as an ivory miniature.

Party Is Planned
With such a happily chosen feature to launch the season, the clubwomen will anticipate the varied events to come. Next Monday, the directorate will preside at an afternoon party, beginning at 2 o'clock. The succeeding Monday will be marked by the appearance of Virginia Silvers Bartlett, in costume, who will speak on "Early California Traditions." Mrs. Bartlett with her husband, Lanier Bartlett, son of Ebbl's first president, Mrs. W. S. Bartlett, recently brought out that delightful book of early California days, "Adios."

October will bring, among other features, the first of Mrs. Jack Valley's book reviews. Mrs. Valley could be obtained for only six of these popular features this year, her talents being in such demand through the Southland. Joan London, daughter of the famous author, the late Jack London, will be programmed in connection with Ebbl Reciprocity day on October 28.

Real Gas from the Wells of California!

For Homes Not on City Gas Mains
ROCKGAS is natural gas from California's wells. All impurities are removed leaving just pure gas which burns with a clear, hot, sootless flame. It is then compressed and put into small steel tanks ready to be transported and used anywhere.
The cost is very nominal, which fact is attested by thousands of users. We quote a few lines from an enthusiastic consumer:
"Rockgas has been used in our ranch home for the past three and one-half years for cooking, heating and automatic storage water heater. Cost of using Rockgas has been but slightly more than gas in the city of Los Angeles. Rockgas has been wholly satisfactory and the little service we have required has always been prompt and efficient."

Let us give you full information about Rockgas service. No obligation.

Light Exercises While Dieting

Before giving the diet for the second day of the 21-DAY-DIET, I want to talk about exercise: Some form of exercise while dieting is necessary but NOT the strenuous forms, as in golf, tennis or long swims. Strenuous exercise tends to add to appetite and when appetite is not appeased one becomes depressed and peevish. We don't want that, so we will confine our exercise to the "daily dozen" taken on arising.

Today, let's start with the first of the exercise: clothing loose, windows open, feet together, shoulders erect, arms stretched rigidly and level with shoulders, head up, chin in, exhale, on the inhale, holding the head, arms and shoulders rigid, rotate the torso (holding the hips as rigid as the head). Use this movement ten times to begin. Tomorrow there will be another torso movement—these exercises aid elimination.

BREAKFAST—Half glass of pure orange juice, 2 slices of Zwieback with 1/2 pat of butter, coffee with 1/2 cup hot skim milk, no sugar.

LUNCH—One large cup strained all-vegetable broth, large portion of raw vegetable salad (lettuce, tomatoes, radishes), garnish of 3 tablespoons of cottage cheese mixed with chopped green onion, dressing of mineral oil French dressing. Clear tea.

DINNER—One veal cutlet pan-broiled with 1 tablespoon butter, 3 tablespoons cooked string beans, same of diced carrots using "pan" gravy as dressing. Salad of 8 asparagus tips with 1/4 head of lettuce, mineral oil French dressing, 1 small baked potato (no butter). Clear tea.

BEDTIME—Take a glass of hot skim-milk, buttermilk, or 1/2 glass of orange juice.

Calorie total for all food eaten—1250.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Hot Slaw Dressing

2 green peppers, shredded
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1/4 cup vinegar
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
1-3 teaspoon white mustard seed

Mix the vinegar with salt, mustard and celery seed, and brown sugar. Let it boil for a couple of minutes, then add the finely shredded green pepper and pour it boiling over 4 cups of finely shaved cabbage. Stir for a few moments over the flame, then serve either as a garnish for meat, or fish, or in larger portions as a salad.

The calorie total for the Hot Slaw complete is 600 and in it there are 6 salad portions. It could be substituted for the dinner salad used in today's 21-Day Diet.

HERE'S REAL BAD LUCK
SOUTH MANCHESTER, Conn., Sept. 10.—Fred Krah can claim some sort of championship over the back luck he had recently. While he was fishing a neighbor appeared and told him his home was on fire. He tied his fish to a string and dropped them on the shore. He found his house destroyed, and on returning for his fish found he had placed them directly above the home of a turtle and that it had devoured them.

OLIVE

OLIVE, Sept. 10.—August Lemke was a Newport Beach visitor last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lemke and children motored to Chino Thursday evening to call on friends. Mrs. McCoy has left for Duluth, Minn., to visit her sister, who is ill. On the return trip she will stop in Portland and Seattle. From there she will drive home.

The olive is a fruit of the olive tree, which is native to the Mediterranean region. It is a small, oval-shaped fruit, typically green or black, and is used in a variety of culinary applications, including as a salad ingredient, in oil, and as a garnish.

Is Modern Girl Brainless?

SOMETIMES I THINK SHE IS
BUT SOMETIMES I THINK SHE ISN'T
By Velva G. Darling

A keen thinker has just written a startling description of the average man of today—I have paraphrased and changed it a little, but it still fits, with laudable pungency, the modern girl. "I sometimes think you're a typical hand-to-mouth," he declared, "with a filled wardrobe and an empty mind! There isn't a rainy day on your calendar, or an umbrella reserve in your calculations. You peddle a marvelous line of ability, samples, but haven't yet delivered a solitary performance up to specifications. You know all the Hot Numbers in the neighborhood, but you disdain to chum with any of the great ones in the library. You are willing to wear out the soles of your shoes in a dance marathon, but scorn to waste an ounce of shoe leather hunting for a better job."

If the modern girl were a slave, chained to a galley, there would be an explanation for her accomplishment of nothing. But, because she has the world with a fence around it, and considers it a cross between a night club and a beach resort—she is brainless! And it doesn't take a mental giant to see it.

On the OTHER hand, maybe the modern girl ISN'T brainless. Maybe she is wiser than Solomon, and a more clever manipulator of people than Napoleon. True, she neither embroiders chair backs nor fears God—she knows too much about the significance of both. She refuses to let her happiness lie in the hands of any one individual husband, mother or chum. She can have as good a time with a party the evening after she has been fired from a good job as she can the evening after she has found a better one. She, apparently, has no class distinction in her makeup—the president hears as many "wise-cracks" from her as the office boy, and probably enjoys them more. She will go without lunch for a month to buy a bottle of expensive perfume, because she knows that cheap scents have done more to upset an office force than any number of empty stomachs.

Sometimes I think the modern girl is the first product of humanity that has actually shown a preference for the things experienced from the nose UP—instead of from the nose DOWN. AND YET, she will spend more time in one day hunting a pair of sport socks to match her green dress than she will in a year in thinking and planning the kind of future she really wants herself to have. And that, my friends, is one sure sign of BRAINLESSNESS!

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

Courting corners for young people, right inside the churches, are advocated by the Rev. Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the Chicago Temple. He okayed some conclusions reached at the recent convention of the International Youth Disciples of Christ to the effect that hand holding and demonstrations of affection, though utterly disapproved by their elders, were not in the class of evil at all.

"They're right," said he. "Nothing is more harmful or unjust than to attribute wicked thoughts to potential lovers who are naturally and wholesomely expressing themselves. Every church should have dim-lighted parlors for this very thing."

"TOO HANDSOME"

Because she claimed her husband was "too handsome," Mrs. Jules Ascher asked Supreme Court Justice Byrne of Brooklyn, N.Y., for a divorce. She said that none of the women could leave her "regular movie sheik" alone and that he was too weak to resist.

How often you hear a woman married to a handsome man advise some other woman never to marry a handsome man—if she wants to be happy. And yet, what virtue is there in being homely? Obviously what Mrs. Ascher resented about her husband was his handsome features, but what she termed his weakness.

It is easier for a handsome man to attract a woman than a homely one—though many of the world's most famous heartbreakers have been positively ugly—not necessarily because of his looks, but because his beautiful features enable him to get by with so many unpleasant traits of character that would be quite obvious in a less personable man.

From the woman's angle of holding her man, there's undoubtedly much more generosity in keeping a man devoted who is obviously attractive in appearance than one that nobody notices.

WOMEN DO SMOKE

Recently I saw a young girl, with her bobbed hair outside of an upstairs window, puffing away at a cigaret, being very careful to blow the smoke outside. No Sherlock Holmes was needed to know that she was having a forbidden flag.

That very afternoon I came across this paragraph in "Ebb and Flow" by Frances, Countess of Warwick: "I knew the kaiser's sister well, Princess Charlotte of Saxe Meiningen."

ingen. How old-fashioned it sounds, but she was one of the first women I ever knew who smoked cigarets and she did this constantly. I found her once at Buckingham Palace, sitting in her bedroom, smoking at an open window, and letting the smoke disappear into the open in case the queen should find out. Queen Victoria had absolutely forbidden smoking in any part of the palace and to have found a lady smoking in her bedroom would doubtless have been horrifying.

History does repeat itself—and some girls will be smokers.

NEW-OLD WORDS

Each generation has its own vernacular, but it is the result of a rotary process rather than new material. Today, the youngsters don't "paint the town red," they "make whoopee." Though that sounds very modern, it is as old as Shakespeare, even in that sense, says Dr. Frank Vizitelli, word expert.

Another descriptive modern expression was also in the Elizabethan's vocabulary—"necking." However, in those days it was used in connection with executioners and professional stranglers.

Will Celebrate Opening Of New Line For Espee

ALTURAS, Calif., Sept. 10.—The old west and the new will be contrasted in colorful ceremonies in Hackamore, Modoc county, next Saturday, to celebrate completion of Southern Pacific's 96-mile line between Klamath Falls and Alturas, linking northern California and Oregon more closely with the east over a new transcontinental route.

Cowboys, Indians and many pioneers of covered wagon days will join the country-wide turnout to hail arrival of rail transportation in new territory. Plans for the festivities have been completed by the chambers of commerce in Klamath Falls and Alturas.

Beach City Plans Teachers' Party

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Sept. 10.—The P.T.A., the Woman's club and the chamber of commerce are co-operating in plans for a public reception in honor of the teachers, faculty members and school boards of the grammar school and high school. The affair will be held at the Woman's club late in September or early in October.

COSTA MESA, Sept. 10.—Twenty-two members of the Monday Bible class met in the R. Vile home last night, with the Rev. R. L. Spicer, of Los Angeles giving the lesson talk on "The In-

Woman's Battle For Man's Love Depicted By Film

A woman's battle for a man's love is the story of "The Lady Lies," Paramount's all-talking version of the great stage play by the same name, which opened in the Fox-Walker theater, yesterday, and runs through tomorrow.

Shocking, thrilling and heart-breaking in spots, the picture is one that will appeal to every woman. It is a sophisticated drama of modern life in a big city with a plot that is delicately handled.

Walter Huston, of "Gentlemen of the Press" fame, has the leading masculine role, making his first appearance in a talkie in dress clothes. His acting is even better than in "Gentlemen of the Press."

Claudette Colbert, New York stage star, plays the feminine lead. Charles Chase, in "The Big Squawk," is on the same bill. A Fox Movietone newsreel completes the bill.

'Lucky Star' Best Picture Made By Gaynor, Farrell

"Lucky Star," the third of the Janet Gaynor-Charles Farrell productions which Director Frank Borzage is responsible for and which is being hailed throughout the country as his best, is the current attraction in the Fox-Broadway theater. The picture opened there yesterday and will run through Thursday.

The story is that of two "lost" young lovers, the girl a hillside waif, the boy with his legs paralyzed from the hips down, who find each other's love after a bitter struggle. She was the daughter of an embittered farming widow and he was wreckage of the great war.

The stars of "Seventh Heaven" and "The Street Angel," play their most important roles in "Lucky Star."

A Pathe sound Sportlite, a "Mickey Mouse" cartoon with sound and a Fox Movietone newsreel complete the bill.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

"That tree fell with a loud kerplunk, but how are we to move the trunk?" said Clowny. "It is pretty big and we're not very strong. Perhaps we'll find another road that's strong enough to hold this load. Of course if we should fall, we'll come right back where we belong."

The Tinymites then looked around, but not an opening was found that led off of the main road. Trees were thick as they could be. And bushes, too, grew up so high there was no chance at passing by. So bushes, trees and shrubbery were all the bunch could see.

"It is no use," wee Scouty said. "We may as well go right ahead and see if we can move that trunk. I think I have a plan. We'll take a rope and tie it tight and then we'll pull with all our might." So, off to get the bit of rope one of the Tintles ran.

They shortly had it 'round the tree and when 'twas tight as it could be they all began to pull real hard. The big trunk stood stock still. Again they pulled, but all in vain. Said Clowny, "This gives me a pain. The three of you can pull some more, but I have had my fill."

All of a sudden Coppy had a plan that didn't seem so bad. "Let's make our auto pull this trunk out of the road," he cried. "Oh, fine," exclaimed the happy bunch. "That surely is a brilliant bunch." The rope was fastened to the car and Scouty jumped inside. "Chug, chug," the little engine cried. And then the trunk began to slide. 'Twas shortly dragged away and they were on their way once more. It wasn't long until they reached an open space and Clowny screeched, "Oh, look ahead! I see a house. I wonder what's in store."

There's 10 acres of oranges in the Tustin District on a paved boulevard, 10 miles from here. It's improved with trees, some full bearing, some younger, also a modern stucco house of 6 rooms and bath, garage and out-houses. There's a S. A. V. I. water. Tustin city water, pipe lines and other necessary conveniences. Although this grove is by no means the finest, it will show a substantial value of the price asked—$30,000, and with care it has that most coveted feature—increased value. $3001.

EVENING SALUTATION

"There are three inalienable rights in the Declaration of Independence—life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. There is no ambiguity to life and liberty. But the pursuit of happiness opens the door to difficult interpretations."

—Charles R. Mann, director of the American Council of Education.

"UNITED STATES OF EUROPE"

A federation of Europe has been tentatively agreed upon.

Premier Aristide Briand, who was the inspirer of the Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact, has started, in our judgment, a bigger thing than the League of Nations in a real federation of nations that may become organic.

It is really a second step of which the League of Nations is the first, toward the direction of a Parliament of the World. Of course, a "United States of Europe" is not a new idea, but certainly the willingness of the nations of Europe to agree upon even the possibility of such a union indicates a new conception of nationalism and internationalism.

We recall that fifteen or sixteen years ago, Dr. Frank Crane wrote a fine imaginative article on the significance of such a union among the nations of Europe particularly, and it was an inspiration to every lover of peace who read it.

The suggestion by some that this be largely confined to an economic federation is hardly a suggestion of limitation, because economics ramifies practically every relationship between nations. It means the breaking down of tariff walls. It means the uniting of credits. It means necessarily the amalgamation of industrial enterprises to build and manufacture the various articles of commerce at the points where they can be made to the greatest advantage.

Just as the industrial leaders in the United States have found that near Lake Erie's shores is the point at which ore and coal can meet to the highest point of economy for the manufacture of iron and steel and their products, so in Europe, under a federation unvexed and unhampered by nationalistic lines, they will be able to locate the points at which to carry on the various enterprises with the greatest economy. This will necessarily mean not only the elimination of tariff walls, but it will mean also the intercommunication and mingling of nationalities, as from necessity the employee must seek the employment. It would be but a few years, under such circumstances, when the lines of demarcation now so clearly defined between the nations of Europe, would be simply lines known to the surveyor and geographer, but would not affect industrial and economic and personal development.

And if it reaches the point where it is organic and there is an international Congress, an international Supreme Court, and an international army, the national armies will not be needed any more than we need the armies for each state. The differences between the nations will be adjudicated in the court, and the international army will carry out the will of Congress and the decrees of the court. National armies will only be used to preserve internal order and may be very small.

As George R. Stewart said on one occasion: "We would just like to live for the next fifty years for the purpose of seeing and hearing the old world hum."

It's now customary to send stowaways back home without seeing a thing—except that they made a sad mistake.

THE REVENUE OF THE STATE

The state board of equalization estimates that the total revenue of the state of California for the fiscal year will amount to $53,352,217.78. This is a tremendous sum. It would have been thought inconceivable twenty years ago. A few million dollars was considered enough to run the state in those days. But times have changed. The people demand more in the way of schools, libraries, highways, and many other public conveniences. The cost of government has gone forward by leaps and bounds since the war. Taxes are higher, of course, but the people have more money to pay taxes.

The interesting feature of taxation today is the new sources of taxation. Over $39,000,000 of the total amount comes from gas and electric companies, telephone and telegraph companies, express companies, insurance companies, and general franchises. Many of these sources of taxation did not exist a generation ago, and such as did exist were hardly of importance. $5,500,000 was collected from national banks, state banks and corporations. While the whole amount came indirectly from all the people, as a matter of fact the direct taxation of the people yielded a little more than $12,000,000 of the total amount. In earlier days, the bulk of the taxes came directly from the people.

There is always a danger in the collection and the expenditures of such vast sums, especially when so much of it does not come directly out of the pockets of the taxpayers. There are those who believe that the cost of government has gone far beyond legitimate bounds, and that largely because so much of the money comes from sources that are not directly felt by all the people. The national government, since the adoption of the income tax amendment to the Constitution, has turned up a most prodigious source of taxation. Our excise and internal revenue taxes yield only a small part of the revenues of the government, where once they yielded nearly the whole of it. This is very apt to make for extravagance and waste. The people ought to be made to realize that wherever the money comes from, ultimately it comes out of the pockets of all the people.

PERFECTLY "ETHICAL"

William B. Shearer, the big navy advocate who is asking the three ship-building companies for $200,000 back salary and other expenses for services rendered, declares what he did was perfectly "ethical."

It is remarkable how Impervious men can become to truth itself when dollars and income are factors in the situation. Openly declaring to the public that he was working as a "patriot" with no other incentive than the public good; secretly taking money from institutions that were going to profit by preparations for war and even by a war itself; now when he is forced to go into the open to get his money, he declares it was perfectly "ethical."

We wonder if he has read President Hoover's statement in respect to the episode. We would suggest to him that if he would read some passages in the Holy Writ, notably Isaiah, the fifth chapter, the twentieth verse, it might help him. The great prophet said:

"Woe unto them that call evil good and good evil; that put darkness for light and light for darkness; that put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter."

And then he might turn to Alfred Tennyson with great profit and read what he said in "Geraint and Enid":

"O purblind race of miserable men!
How many among us at this very hour
Do forge a lifelong trouble for ourselves,
By taking true for false, or false for true;
Here, thro' the feeble twilight of this world
Groping—how many—until we pass and reach
That other, where we see as we are seen."

Some people have to lose $10,000 jobs before they realize they are worth only $5000.

MEDDLING IN MARRIAGES

The League for Sexual Reform is having an international convention in London. The chairman of the meeting, the Reverend W. F. Geikie-Cobb, in emphasizing the greater ease with which divorce should be procured in his judgment, quoted John Sheldon, who said:

"In all actions of my life, my marriage is the least concerned to the other people; yet of all my actions it is the one most meddled in by other people."

We wonder if the experience of Sheldon is the experience of most people. We have not observed that that experience is general. We rather suspect that if there is any meddling, it is because there is trouble, and the trouble is of such nature that it reaches the public and affects society. There must be something further back of it.

We believe the great majority of the people of this city and county are free from any meddling of the public into their marriage affairs, and if there is any meddling, it is due to some form of invitation that is given. We are not going to invite experiences, for it might be the means of inviting meddling again. It will be a long time before the state and society can reach the point where it can give no concern to domestic and family life.

The Last Veteran Passes

Imperial Valley Press
It means possibly but little to us in these modern days, but the final chapter in a stirring era of United States history has just been closed with the death of the last surviving veteran of the Mexican war.

Of the thousands of young Americans who answered the call to colors in 1846, Owen Thomas Edgar was the last one to have "Taps" sounded over his grave at Washington this week.

The Civil War is so remote to most of us, that it is hard to realize that a man has just died who had an active part in the war with Mexico, when Grant, Lee, Sherman, Sheridan and other notable names in the nation's history, were just winning their spurs.

As late as two years ago, there were five survivors of the war, but death rapidly claimed the aged veterans one by one since that time.

The war with Mexico has been called unjustifiable and a bit of bad politics by many historians, but none can question the good motives of the soldier in the ranks who offered himself when his country called. To him the cause was as just as it was to the Union or Confederate soldier of two decades later, the veteran of '98 or those who participated in the World war.

More than four score years have elapsed since Owen Thomas Edgar marched away. He saw his country develop from a puny nation to a mighty power. The changes occurring from the date of his enlistment to the time the Grim Reaper called him, would not be believed possible, had they been told to him 83 years ago.

The time will come when the last veteran of the World war will answer the final call. Who will dare prophesy what changes he will have seen take place in the next four decades? Compared with conditions in 1846, it would seem that we have reached the pinnacle of progress, but progress is eternal, knowing no halting and pressing ever onward.

What will Owen Thomas Edgar's companions of Monterey and Buena Vista say when he tells them of the Argonne and St. Mihiel, with millions of men in action? Will they believe that any progress has been made by the world?

Honor For Stephen Mather

Long Beach Press-Telegram
Stephen T. Mather is to have a memorial in Yosemite National Park. Very fitting. He deserves the honor. It should be bestowed upon him while he lives. Too often praise and memorials are withheld from the deserving living to be showered upon them after they are dead. There should be more praise for living ears—more memorials for living eyes to see.

For fourteen years Stephen T. Mather was the towering leader in the movement to create a great system of national parks. He espoused the movement with the zeal of a crusader. He threw into the movement his time, energy and money. He brought about enlargements of existing national parks. He instituted new parks. The work that he did is reflected in the record of millions of persons visiting these national parks annually and delighting in them.

John Hays Hammond is chairman of a distinguished committee which will raise $150,000 and construct a memorial soon in Yosemite National Park, in the sublime region where Mr. Mather first had his zeal kindled for perfecting the national park system throughout the land.

California owes much to this man. This State's appreciation of his talents and devotion should be manifested in some fitting manner.

More Truth Than Poetry

A SIGN OF RELIEF

I have always been troubled with worry
Concerning the bodies that race,
In the very old deuce of hurry,
Through the infinite regions of space.
My nerves became badly unsteady
When I thought what this life would be worth
Should one of these giants be headed Toward our little old paper shelled earth.

I suppose I was lacking in vision

To suffer these spasms of fright
For of course, in a case of collision,
My life would be snuffed like a light.
But still when the planets were blinking
And beyond their wide orbits I'd stare
I somehow could never help thinking
About the wild comets out there.

I found that it hardly was cheering

To gaze far forth into the night
And imagine some orb was careening
Straight on toward my house in its flight.
I thought how the monster would rush on
The earth, and alight with a clank!
I thought of the awful concussion
Which would flatten me out like a plank.

But now I have found that my terror

And my hours of utter dismay
Were due to an ignorant error
For worlds are not galled that way.
They are pulled by great suns through the spaces
Which we see between stars of a night,
And they always must keep the same places
So myself and the world are all right!

STILL UP

It begins to look as if the stock market was also out for an endurance record.

Why Not Have a Four-Hour Day?

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

"The four-hour working day would solve the unemployment problem," declares George Bernard Shaw. That at least sounds logical. If the workers now labor eight hours a day, it might take twice as many to do the same work in four hours a day.

But if that is the way to abolish unemployment, why has it not been abolished? A decade or two ago, the ten-hour-day, and even the twelve-hour-day, were common. Then came shorter hours. Also fewer days per week for most workers. Still the haggard figure of unemployment stalked through the industrial world. Shortening the hours of labor did not shorten the bread lines.

There must be something the matter with Shaw's argument. For if we can really gain so much by reducing the hours of labor to four, why stop there? A two-hour-day would make work for still more men.

No, the volume of unemployment is not a sound basis for determining how many hours we should work. We ought to have more leisure. On that point, Shaw is right. No doubt, we shall have more leisure, as a part of our reward for increased productivity per hour of our labor. That is sound economics. That is the position taken in recent years by the American Federation of Labor.

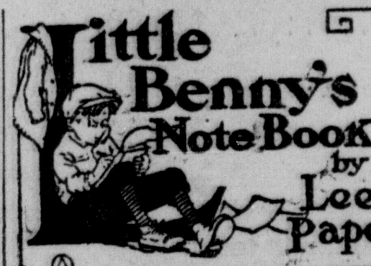

But to contend that everybody should work fewer hours in order to create jobs for the unemployed is economic nonsense. In the first place, that method does not create the jobs—not for workers as a whole.

In the second place, that method does not increase the standard of living of workers as a whole. The only way to do much toward that end is to increase per capita output.

By all means let us plan for more leisure.

But not as a cure for unemployment.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

EDUCATING FOR CHANGE

Yesterday I spoke of the fact that schools are essentially conservative institutions, not because reactionary interests are strangling them with subsidies or seducing them with propaganda, but simply because schools are formal institutions, and formal institutions always lag behind the changing needs of society.

Those of us who are charged with the responsibility of administering the nation's schools will betray our trust if we set out to make the schools either strongholds of reaction or hotbeds of radicalism.

But we dare not do other than fight the normal tendency of the school, as an institution, to lag behind the needs of a changing civilization.

Two things we have a right to expect the schools to do, as follows:

First, to picture society as it really is at the moment, not as it was 50 years ago.

Second, to prepare students to play an intelligent part in the affairs of a changing world.

We have said that our schools exist to prepare our sons and daughters for adult participation in the affairs of their time.

But, in the main, I think our schools have failed to do this on two counts, as follows:

First, they have prepared our sons and daughters for the adult life of ten or twenty-five years ago rather than for the adult life of the present.

The social situation has changed materially during the last 25 years, and the subject matter of education has not kept pace with the change. The social picture in the text books is out of date. Second, they are not preparing our sons and daughters to wrestle with a future that will probably change more rapidly than the immediate past changed.

The social situation will be changed materially during the next 25 years. Just what these changes will be no one knows. Even our ablest prophets are in vivid disagreement. Therefore, the only education we have any right to give to our sons and daughters is not an education for a changed world, for we do not know the kind of world in which they will have to live, but an education for a changing world.

In the days ahead, the educated man will be the man who can meet and master the challenge of swift social change.

We must rethink both the subject matter and teaching methods of education in terms of this question:

How can we prepare our sons and daughters to maintain a clear head and a sense of real values in a rapidly changing world?

This is more important than learning or not learning any particular fact or field.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

CHECK UP

Never give a child a task and take it for granted that he did it. Check up. Go over his work carefully, with an appraising eye, and value it for him. Unless you do this the child will not consider work worth while.

The mother who says, "Dust the dining room chairs, dear, and make sure you don't skip the bottom rail," and then says, "You've finished? So soon? All right. You can go now," without taking a look at the chairs is laying the foundations for trouble. Everybody needs an audience, the child especially needs an appreciative one. Your checking up is to be more of an appreciation than a condemnation, but it must strengthen the child to further effort always.

When you send a child to the store insist upon having a slip for every purchase and having the change come right every time. This may seem a very untrusting attitude but it need not be. Make it a business attitude. All purchases are to be checked up. All money transactions made a matter of record. If a child is trained that way from the very beginning he will have a fine background for such things and related things, later on. Goodbookkeeping helps many a wavering youngster to keep straight.

All homework lessons must be checked up. Teachers often give more homework than they can correct. This is very dangerous. As soon as a child finds that his work is not checked up, is not valued, is not held to a standard of perfection, he slights that work. It is far more serious to the character growth of a child to have him slight work than it is to have him fail to do it altogether and say so. Teaching a child to get by without effort, is sad teaching, and a lack of check up will have just that result.

Checking up work has its effect on both sides. If you have to go over the child's work you will be more careful in assigning it. You will soon learn, too a great deal about the kind of thinking the child does, about his attitudes, his powers and the like. Many a little fault that might grow into a big one is discovered in time by a checking up process. Many a weakness is strengthened because some mother or teacher checked up on the child's work, read his story carefully, studied his picture with interest, and gathered insight regarding the little worker.

Of course it is a great deal of trouble but then, everything that is worth while is troublesome. Think how you would feel if you cooked a dinner and nobody came home to eat it. How would you feel if you wrote a book and nobody read it? Think how you would feel if you did your best on any bit of work and there was nobody, not even the person who suggested the job, to look it over. Then remember to check up on the little jobs you give the children lest they, too know the bitterness of neglect.

There is a word of caution, as usual. Supervision means a higher vision—not a prying, carping, nagging scrutiny for the purpose of finding fault. Appreciation is the essence of the check up.

BATTLE OF LAKE ERIE

On Sept. 10, 1813, Captain Oliver H. Perry won the naval Battle of Lake Erie in the war with England.

The battle took place near Putge-in-Bay, 10 miles north of Sandusky, O., at noon. The squadrons were about equally matched in officers and men. There were six British and six American vessels, although the former carried more guns and were better equipped for long distance fighting.

The American flagship, the Lawrence, was terrifically battered and her decks became wet with carnage and her guns dismounted. Carrying his broad pennant and banner, Perry dropped into a little boat and crossed to his second largest ship, the Niagara.

Piercing the enemy's line with the new flagship and followed by the smaller vessels, Perry at last gained the advantage of a close engagement and won the fight in eight minutes.

Captain Perry's laconic dispatch to his superior officer read: "We have met the enemy and they are ours . . . two ships, two brigs, one schooner and one sloop."
